Small ensembles from music school classes and from outside the University will perform at the recital in the School of Music auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

Violinist, pianist due for recital

Lawrence Maves, violinist, and William Woods, pianist, will give a public musical recital Sunday afternoon in the School of Music auditorium.

Stern to play with Portland Symphony

Isaac Stern, one of the world's most famous violinists, will appear with the Portland Symphony orchestra at the Portland Civic Auditorium, Dec. 1. The orchestra will be under the direction of Theodore Bloomfield.

Stern will play Bach's Violin Concerto in A Minor and Prokofiev's Concerto No. 2 in G Minor. In addition, the orchestra will perform Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 and Kodaly's "Hary Janos" suite.

Two years ago Stern made international headlines when he accepted an invitation from the U.S. State Department to tour Soviet Russia. Some 20,000 persons were turned away from his last concert in Moscow.

Stern returned in late October of this year from a European tour which included nine European countries. He appeared at nearly every major European festival, including the Brussels World Fair.

His Portland appearance will be one of more than 60 that he will give during his recent seventh coast-to-coast tour.

Power led bold, romantic life

By BOB THOMAS
AP Motion Picture Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tyrone Power, the ideal lover on the screen, led an equally romantic career in real life.

His good looks, his graceful manner and worldliness swayed the hearts of some of Hollywood's most famous beauties. Yet his last love was a complete unknown to the movie world.

Tyrone's first Hollywood love was Sonja Henie, the sparkling-eyed skater from Norway and his co-star in "Thin Ice." Friends expected them to marry.

Never too old
But Sonja went to Norway and Ty began dating Janet Gaynor. They almost reached an engagement too, but broke off and he began escorting Arleen Whelan. His propensity for dating his co-stars was borne out with Norma Shearer "Marie Antoinette," Loretta Young "Love is News" and Annabella "Suez."

Often his romances were with actresses older than himself, as was the case with Annabella. She was divorced and had a 9-year-old daughter. Desperately in love, Tyrone and Annabella married when Power was 25.

"Married to her," Tyrone declared after a year, "riches never cease."

Annabella found him a different man when he returned from the war. "Freedom's the greatest thing in the world to me," he said, and their marriage ended after seven years and no children.

Ty Torrid
"Ty Power's the only man I've ever loved." This bold statement came from Lana Turner as she and Ty engaged in a torrid romance between marriages. She proved her point by vanishing from the set of "Green Dolphin Street" and turning up in the heart of Mexico where he was filming "Captain from Castille." They might have married, except that Ty was not yet free from Annabella. As was often the case with Lana, the romance cooled and they went separate ways.

Linda Christian had known Ty slightly in Hollywood. So when the ambitious beauty from Mexico discovered he was staying in the same hotel in Rome, she telephoned him. They met for cocktails, and another tumultuous romance began. They married shortly thereafter.

They had two daughters and a fast life in various capitals of the world. Hollywood whispered that while Ty was working abroad she was being escorted by a young Britisher, Edmund Purdom. The end finally came when she testified in tears that Ty liked to take trips but not with her. Her attorney estimated the settlement at over a million dollars.

Girls, girls, girls
Ty continued his travels and gloried in the single life. Last year in Mexico City he told me: "I'm very happy the way I am now. I know several girls here and there who are excellent company and who have no thoughts of matrimony. Those who do are quickly discovered and eliminated."

Yet he again married, this time to a non-professional, Mississippi belle Debbie Smith Minardos. Last June, they announced happily that they were expecting a child in February. She had a daughter of her own by a previous marriage, and they were hoping for a son.
