DIRECTOR EUGENE KINGMAN studies a pioneer's handbook as he tries to assemble a 125-year-old Contesoga wagon at Omaha's Joslyn Art Museum. Knocked-down wagon had been stored near Gettysburg, Pa. He succeeded in task.

REP. JOSEPH W. MARTIN of Massachusetts, right, congratulates Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana after House Republicans voted to toss out Martin as their floor leader and replace him with Halleck. The vote was 74 to 70 on the second ballot. (AP).

ELIZABETH TAYLOR and boy friend Eddie Fisher pose for photographers at Chasen's restaurant in Beverly Hills, Calif. She told newsmen she was "nauseated" by the report of a Los Angeles newspaper that she was in a Kansas mental hospital. (AP Wirephoto)

MRS. MARIA VILLEGAS displays the tools she used as she waited for the return of burglars who have entered her home at Norwalk, Calif., three times in the past month. When two neighborhood boys, each 13, entered her house she (1) snapped their picture, (2) covered them with the rifle and (3) screamed for police. Police said the boys admitted the series of burglaries, in which $230 was taken.
