Sculpture is topic of lecture tonight

Jan Zach, instructor in the School of Architecture and Allied Arts, will lecture on "Development of Contemporary Sculpture" tonight at 7:30 in the SU. This lecture is the first of a series sponsored by the Creative Arts Committee.

Zach is a native of Czechoslovakia, and studied at the Superior School of Industrial Arts and the Academy of Fine Arts in Prague. He came to the United States in 1938 to decorate the Czechoslovakian building at the New York World's Fair.

From there he went to South America where he spent eleven years. He traveled to Brazil on a special commission and collaborated with leading architects in South America in the fields of painting, sculpture, book illustrations, and interior designing. He also taught part time but he was basically a free lance artist.

He then went to Canada where he first taught at the University of Alberta. Next he taught at the Banff School of Fine Arts and finally he went to Victoria, B.C., where, with the cooperation of the Department of Education and the school board, he started his own art school. He was in Victoria until 1958 when he was called to the University.

One of his works on campus is "Prometheus Bound" which stands near the Museum. Those who saw the University Theatre Production, "The Tempest" last year were able to view the unique stage set designed by Zach.

Following the lecture, sandwiches and coffee will be served.

Fulbright scholarship applications for 1960-1961 are now available to graduating seniors and graduate students. K. S. Ghent, associate professor of mathematics, announced Friday.

Approximately 950 scholarships are available. Included in the awards for 27 countries are 200 scholarships for study in Germany, 175 for France and 94 in the United Kingdom.

This year five University students are studying abroad on Fulbright grants. They are Clifford Ackley, Netherlands; Clarine Shemwell and Fred Stenkamps, Germany; Dorothy McBroom, France and Robert Adler, England.

Ballinger to talk on Conant report

Two addresses in New Mexico and Arizona will be made during the coming week by Thomas O. Ballinger, head of the art education division of the School of Architecture and Allied Arts.

On October 20, Ballinger will speak at a meeting at the University of Arizona. He will address a conference of the New Mexico Art Education on October 22.

Ballinger, who has been a member of a Ford Foundation group studying the teaching of art history in high schools, will speak on the place of art in the school curriculum. He will discuss the Conant report in respect to art education, explaining that the report suggests the need for study and reevaluation of current practice in the preparation of teachers.
