

OREGON WILL PLAY HARVARD

STUDENTS STOP TO TALK between classes in the mid-twenties. The buildings on the Old Campus are from left, the library, Deady hall, and Villard hall.

Or Women Will Make Use of Annual Leap Week

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 14, 1926—Look Out Men! Senior Leap Week is on, senior women are scrambling around madly for dates, and the shy man has no more chance than a lamb in the midst of a pack of wolves. Senior Leap Week is a tradition of the University which is carried from far back into the dim past, unknown to the present college generation. Secret sorrows, worshipped from afar, are at last attainable. New flames are acquired, old ones discarded, which is another source of worry to the masculine portion of the campus. In short, any senior woman has the complete right to ask any man on the campus for a date during the course of the week.

Open House Tonight

The first thing on the program is open house, which is tonight. Due to the lack of senior men in some houses and the multiplicity of their numbers in other houses, combinations have been made as follows: Alpha Beta Chi and Psi Kappa at the Alpha Beta Chi house, Sigma Chi and Alpha Tau Omega at the Sigma Chi house, Theta Chi and Phi Gamma Delta at the Theta Chi house, Beta Theta Pi and Chi Psi at the Beta house, Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Pi Tau at the Delt house. The rest of the living organizations will entertain alone. If changes are made the houses will be notified.

Event Scheduled

The Koffee Bust Friday afternoon is being given by the Kappa, Delta Zeta and Delta Gamma seniors. Friday evening is the Bar-room Bust, given by the Susan Campbell and Hendricks halls and Thacher cottage. Saturday afternoon the last number on the program will be a senior class picnic at Seavey's Ferry. The picnickers will leave the Administration building at 3:30 and return at some indefinite time in the evening.

Millracing Is Outlawed

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Nov. 11, 1942—One more University tradition has become only a memory, and no longer will freshmen quake with fear as they think of the angry waters of the famous Oregon millrace. Millracing, that time honored custom of tossing people into the local stream, was outlawed and declared an illegal pastime for University students by student discipline committee at its meeting Tuesday afternoon, according to W. A. Dahlberg, chairman of the committee.

Millrace Trouble

Millrace trouble has been brewing this term since several innocent victims ended in the infirmary after an icy dip following the short forced march that regularly precedes a racing.

Complaints have come from the health service concerning the number of patients received because of racing incidents.

The discipline committee passed the following motion to end the trouble:

Racing Stopped

That the student discipline committee of the University of Oregon considers the practice of mill-racing students contrary to the welfare of University students. Therefore, the committee insists that the practice of mill-racing be stopped.

Penalties for breaking the committee's rule concerning racing are:

1. Whenever it is shown that an organized group violates the regulation, the group in question will be denied the privilege of adding new members.

2. Whenever individual students or unorganized groups of students violate this regulation, they will be subject to suspension from the University.

The committee at its Tuesday meeting also relieved a fraternity of a penalty imposed earlier in the year since the fraternity has shown a successful reorganization of its affairs. The fraternity was denied the privileges of pledging or initiating members and was placed on social probation.

Shy's Men Officially Selected Today

Jean Failing Named Head of AWS For Year

Women Students Elect New Officers

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 6, 1933—Jean Failing of Portland yesterday was elected president of the Associated Women Students of the University for the 1933-34 school year. She will succeed Louise Webber, also of Portland. Miss Failing has been particularly active in women's activities during the past two years. Miss Failing was unopposed for the office.

President Outstanding

The newly elected president has been outstanding in AWS affairs, having served for two years on the executive council, first as chairman of the vocational conference and this year as head of frosh councilors. She is also a member of Phi Theta Upsilon.

Virginia Hartje, who replaces Emambelle Staddon as vice-president, was elected over Caroline Card, who is at present secretary of the organization. Miss Hartje is now active on the AWS Carnival directorate.

Marie Saccomanno, who is also serving on the Carnival directorate, defeated Virginia Howard for the office of secretary, which is now held by Caroline Card.

Treasurer Is Council Member

Josephine Waffle defeated Peggy McKie for the office of treasurer, which is now held by Katherine Briggs. Miss Waffle has been activities chairman on the executive council this year.

For the office of sergeant-at-arms, Roberta Moody won over Betty Gearhart, replacing Elizabeth Benstrup, and Ann Reed Burns defeated Henriette Horak for the office of reporter, which is now held by Elsei Peterson. Misses Burns, Moody, and Horak are reporters on the Emerald.

In commenting on the results of the election, Louise Webber, retiring president, said, "I am well pleased with the outcome of the voting, and am confident in turning the organization over to the new officers." The voting was close in all the offices except for the offices of sergeant-at-arms and reporter.

Junior Frolic Cast Try Out

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 16, 1926—All senior women who took part in the senior April frolic stunt are asked to come to dress rehearsal at the Woman's building at 10 o'clock Sunday morning to try out for Junior Vodvil.

Vivian Harper, who had charge of the stunt, asks that everyone who was connected with the act to turn out in costume and to enter the building by the sun porch door.

Harvard Decides To Make Trip

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, December 11, 1919—"Tournament of Roses committee cordially invites you to send your best eleven to play Harvard University New Year's Day at Pasadena on terms to those governing your previous contest here. Please wire acceptance immediately and a formal contract will be sent you."

Such is the telegram received at 4 o'clock this afternoon by President P. L. Campbell from W. L. Leishman, president of the Tournament of Roses committee at Pasadena, Calif. A similar telegram was received by Marian McClain, graduate manager, at the time.

The faculty meeting shortly after 4 o'clock unanimously decided to give their consent to the acceptance of the offer.

News Received

Coach "Shy" Huntington, Trainer Bill Hayward, Assistant Coach Bart Spellman and the entire Oregon football team received the news with joy. Fifteen minutes after the faculty gave out their favorable decision, 24 members of the varsity football squad were on Kincaid field practicing. The frigid weather and six inches of crusted snow were no obstacles to them. The team has done but little training or practicing during the prolonged indecision of the Pasadena committee, but tonight they started the most gruelling siege of training an Oregon eleven has ever undergone. To Bill Hayward, Oregon's veteran trainer, will rest the greatest of the load of work in the team's preparation for the biggest football classic ever staged in the United States.

Team Will Train

With but three weeks before the contest will be staged, Trainer Hayward is starting the almost superhuman task of whipping a team into the best of physical condition as it must be before it can line up against the powerful Harvard eleven. All Oregon stands behind him and Coaches Shy Huntington and Spellman, and place every confidence in their preparation. Every member of the Pacific Coast championship eleven is in good condition except for the staleness which has come during the past two weeks of inactivity. None of the men are seriously injured.

Team Jubilant

Every member of the Oregon eleven is jubilant over their selection. Captain Brandenburg voiced the sentiment of the squad this afternoon when he said, "I'm all for it."

It is probable that the team will leave shortly for Pasadena in order to be in the sunny south for training and practicing. To scrimmage, practice, and get in shape in Eugene would be almost an impossibility due to the heavy mantle of snow which rests over the city and which shows no sign of disappearing.

Beer Banned In Living Organizations

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 5, 1933—There will be no beer in fraternity houses or halls on the Oregon campus, it became evident yesterday.

Emphatic reiteration of the University administration's stand against the use of alcoholic beverages by students was made yesterday by the student advisory committee and Virgil D. Earl, dean of men. This action was taken at meetings of the committee, of which Karl Onthank, dean of personnel administration, is chairman, and at a meeting of the interfraternity council.

Committee Statement

The statement of the committee follows:

"In consideration of the fact that beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content will be legally available after April 6, 1933, it seems advisable for the University of Ore-bon to reaffirm its position in regard to alcoholic beverages. The University of Oregon's present policy pertaining to alcoholic beverages will continue in full force."

The administration has for many years expressed a strong stand against the use of liquor by students, it was explained by Dean Earl. This policy is understood to date back to the first days of the University, long before the state went dry.

Dean is "Opposed"

"I am personally opposed to the use of liquor by students while at the University," Dean Earl said in a statement on his own views.

A check of the majority of fraternities showed that they had either national or local rules against the use of liquor in the houses and that no action had been taken in view of the legalized character of 3.2 per cent beer. Several houses have sent queries to their national officers to ascertain whether any change has been made in national rules. They have received no replies as yet.

Houses Ban Liquor

This would indicate that the policy of practically all houses of banning the use of liquor in the house will continue in force. It was not thought likely by leaders of the interfraternity council that any house would except the newly legalized beer from the ban.

All sororities on the campus also have strict regulations as to the use of liquor by any of their members. At present a member is liable to "unpinning" by practically all groups if she shows evidences of having been drinking intoxicating beverages.
