

ELBOW BENDERS

Step

Down

Into

Step down into The Cellar and step into a cordial brew emporium unexcelled in Eugene. Presided over by Sully Sullivan, your genial host, The Cellar features an evening of gait and merriment for all devotees of that "cool" one. Pizza fanciers have their fling here, too. Levity reigns supreme in the jovial gay '90's atmosphere. Dusty and aged pictures of a long-past era frame the cheesecloth-covered tables and "baubles, bangles, and beads" typical of the turn of the century.

Start this evening to make The Cellar your Eugene entertainment spa. . . . Suds and pizza, an incomparable Homecoming treat.

Deep down in the subterranean depths of the Osburn Hotel is a dispensary of fine beverages well known on campus. Those elbow-benders of age quickly discover that The Cellar offers the finest surroundings in Eugene conducive to friendliness and conviviality.

The football teams of Oregon and Oregon State will meet today on Hayward Field in mortal combat. The Cellar extends an open invitation to rabid fans of both clubs to cement friendly relations after the game. Note below the peaceful coexistence already adopted by two rival fans. Pete Edmiston of Oregon and a prominent Oregon patron of The Cellar match plays over steins of cool, refreshing brew.

The Cellar

in the basement of the Osburn Hotel

191 East 8th