

World News IN BRIEF

Venus may have life

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Evidence that indicates the possibility of life on the planet Venus has been discovered on a balloon flight that took two men 15 miles into space.

The balloon carried instruments which recorded evidence that there is water vapor in the atmosphere of Venus, which could make life possible. Previously it was believed no life existed on the planet.

Senate's payroll out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first publication of the Senate's payroll in 11 years has revealed that at least 18 senators had relatives in congressional jobs last summer.

The list includes 13 Democratic senators and five Republicans. The Senate published its payroll for July 1 to September 30 following a row over Congressional nepotism.

Club continues ban

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The American Legion's fun-loving affiliate, the 40 and 8, has refused to drop its ban against Negroes. The national commander of the Legion, Martin McKneally, has ordered the dispute taken to court.

McKneally plans to test the legality of the 40 and eight's "white only" clause.

IFC president back from N.Y. meet

IFC president Al Winters and vice-president Tom Creager returned yesterday with fraternity advisor Bud Mangels and Dean of Administration Donald DuShane from the national Inter-fraternity conference in New York Nov. 26-28.

American fraternities celebrated their golden anniversary at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. At the same time the national presidents met with undergraduate representatives for discussion of problems confronting fraternities and specific topics of interest to fraternities.

The national conference passed a resolution opposing hazing. The resolution said undergraduate leaders "believe hazing is detrimental to the best interests of the pledges and inconsistent with the unselfish ideals of fraternities."

Other matters considered by the conference were rushing, scholarship, and pledging.

"It was one of the most wonderful experiences I've ever had," said Winters. "I learned a lot of things back there," he continued. "I also met some fine people."

"It was inspiring to hear men 55 and 60 years old who were so dedicated to fraternities for what the frats had done for them."

Piggers Guide out Thursday at SU

The Piggers Guide, campus student directory, will go on sale Thursday morning, according to Si Ellingson, Student Union director. Ellingson's office edited the publication.

Another publication, the Northwest Review, will be on sale starting Friday, according to editor Tom Gaddis. The prize-winning literary quarterly is composed of fiction, poetry and art.

The Piggers Guide is the official student directory of the University. It lists the names, home addresses, year and major of all University students as well as campus addresses and telephone numbers.

Summer session in Europe slated

A summer session in Europe for graduate or undergraduate credit has been organized by New York University with the help of the Netherlands Universities Foundation for International Cooperation.

American and European professors will teach eight courses from July 11 through August 19 at the University of Leiden. Students are expected to make their own arrangements for transportation and living accommodations.

Courses listed Course subjects are: "The Theory of Comparative Literature," "The Modern European Drama," "Trends of European Thought since 1918," "Seventeenth-Century European Art," "The European Common Market, Its Politics and Economics," "In-

Marshall to review writer Andre Gide

By SUE HUNTER Emerald Staff Writer

The French novelist and critic Andre Gide will be discussed by Dr. T. E. Marshall, assistant professor of romance languages, at the Browsing Room lecture Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Gide, known for his satire, attacks on Puritanism, and apologies for homosexuality, wrote largely semi-autobiographical fiction based on the conflicts between man's desire for self fulfillment and the barriers of convention.

His works include "The Immoralist," "The Vatican Swindle," "The Counterfeiters," and "If I Die," as well as his journals. He also was associated with the literary periodical "Nouvelle Revue Francaise."

Gide, who died in 1951, was (Continued on page 7)

Advisor meetings tonight for frosh

Freshmen advisors will hold meetings with their advisees at 7 p.m. tonight. Meeting places are listed in winter term time schedules which may be picked up at the registrar's office.

These meetings will kick off the winter term advising program which lasts until Dec. 12. Sophomores, juniors and seniors must make their appointments to see their advisors before that time.

Upper division students should pick up their time schedules and have a trial schedule made up before meeting with their advisors.

GG: Have canoe, need paddlers!

By LARRY KURTZ Emerald News Editor

Stroke, scrub, and sing. (Perhaps swim, too.)

That's Wednesday's agenda for ASUO student body President Gary Gregory, who will canoe his way up the Willamette River to Corvallis to pay off the bet that he lost to Oregon Aggie President Will Post concerning the outcome of the OSC-Webfoot game November 24.

Canoes available

Gregory, who told the Emerald in an exclusive telephone report that several prospective companions for the trip had "chickened out" as of Monday evening, is extending an invitation to any (or all) members of the student body who would like to help him make the journey.

'Anger' continues in Arena Theatre

John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" goes into its third performance tonight, and will continue through Dec. 10 in Arena Theatre.

Tickets for the Dec. 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 performances may be reserved by calling the University Theatre box office, extension 441, between 1 and 5 p.m. daily. Tickets for the Friday and Saturday night shows have been sold out.

All performances start at 8 p.m.

The drama concerning England's post-war generation was staged last Friday and Saturday nights. Playwright Osborne is considered the dramatic spokesman for the cult of "angry young men," a group comparable to the United States' "beat generation."

Directed by Preston Tuttle, the cast of five includes Howard Hessman as Jimmy Porter, Cynthia Stillman as his wife Alison, Camilla Kleebe as "the other woman," Don Lev as Col. Redfern and Wade Bantson as Cliff Lewis.

The University's 12 canoes will be available, Gregory said, and anyone interested in making the trip should contact him at his office (ext. 654) or leave a message there before 5 p.m. this evening.

The President plans to leave about 4:30 a.m. tomorrow morning, however, so that he (and his party, if anyone else dares to go) might arrive in Corvallis before noon.

A welcoming party will greet the Webfoot representative(s) and escort him (them) to the Aggie Memorial Union, where a free lunch will be served, and a "serious" Beaver Senate meeting will be held for the purpose of encouraging "friendly relations."

Travelers welcome

Gregory said that all who make the trip (and they should know how to swim) will probably be welcome to the Senate meeting and be extended other courtesies, but won't have to aid him in scrubbing the OSC seal or singing the Orange fight song.

Two years ago, University students Chuck Mitchelmore and Jim Perry paddled all the way to Portland in an effort to gain publicity for the Millrace Restoration project, and had little difficulty in accomplishing the feat.

Gregory isn't taking any chances on unforeseen incidents, however.

He plans to "survey the river" this afternoon, and obtain a map of the route he will take.

"Fun" hoped for

Gregory said that the trip should be "a lot of fun," and added that it was "a good thing my proposal that the loser walk from Eugene to Corvallis was turned down."

Rumor has it that Emerald impresario Don Jepsen has volunteered to join Gregory on the excursion (if he can get up in time) and, as the exuberant Duck president said:

"The more the merrier" (Quite trite, but accurate, he maintains).

ASUO PRESIDENT Gary Gregory and fellow travelers (if any) who will make the trip to Aggieville Wednesday morning before the dawn breaks probably won't find the Willamette River as lethargic as the University Millrace (nor will co-eds be joining them in two-man canoes). Gregory is eagerly awaiting the rush of phone calls at his office. In any event this picture shows what the trip WON'T entail.
