

ODE reporter asks, 'how are you fixed for grades'

By DAVE CAPPS

Where are the house grades, enrollment figures, and other facts that about this time each term sally forth from the depths of the registrar's office?

In an effort to discover the answers to these and other questions, the Emerald's ever-alert staff of news minded reporters has been constantly calling, visiting, and imploring the Registrar's Office to release this information.

Painting, sculpture shown at museum

A special painting and sculpture exhibition is currently being shown at the University museum of art.

ENTITLED "Trustees' choice," the exhibition will be on display until January 24. The 44 works included in the loan exhibition were drawn from the collections of 17 Trustees of the American Federation of Arts who are numbered among the most active and perceptive collectors in the United States.

The display's emphasis is primarily on supporting the art of our time. Included among the oils, watercolors and gouaches are single representative works by each of the following painters: Avery, Bacci, Burchfield, Fraser, Harley, Hopper, Knaths, Kuniyoshi, Lansky, Leger, Levine, Menkes, Nicholson, O'Keeffe, Shahn, Sheeler, Tobey and Weber.

Most of the artists' works are being shown in the Northwest for the first time.

Job Interviews

Persons with BS, MS or PhD degrees in chemistry will be interviewed today for jobs with Rayonier, Inc., in Shelton, Wash.

Wednesday interviews will be conducted by Hercules Power for jobs in various parts of the country. BS and MS in physics and mathematics are desired. Kohlen, Larson, Leidrich and Co., will also conduct interviews Wednesday of accountants for jobs in Eugene.

Philco Corp. will interview persons Thursday with MS or PhD degrees in physics and mathematics for jobs in Palo Alto, Calif.

Any interested major may appear for an interview Friday by the Stanford Graduate School of Business Administration for work in Stanford, Calif. Accountants will also be interviewed Friday for West Coast jobs with Arthur Andersen and Co.

Students interested in positions with Liberty Mutual Insurance Company with job locations in Los Angeles and San Francisco will be interviewed Monday. Students may sign interview schedule at the University Placement Service.

Boston U announces graduate fellowships

Boston University's School of Public Relations and Communications has announced that it will give five fellowships of $1200 each plus tuition to Master of Science candidates for the academic year beginning September 12, 1960.

The grants are provided for one year of graduate study in journalism, public relations, broadcasting or motion pictures.

Application forms may be secured by writing to Melvin Brodshaug, Dean, Boston University School of Public Relations and Communications, 640 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston 15, Mass. Applications must be in not later than Feb. 26, 1960.

To no avail.

We visited the Registrar's Office in order to procure a list of those students who have changed addresses since the Pigger's Guide was published. We had no malicious purpose. We only intended to provide a supplement to said Guide so that each of us may know where the other abides.

AGAIN, TO NO AVAIL.

"We perform no such service," said those in the Registrar's Office.

"Hmmm," said our reporter. Acting on a hot tip, we called the Registrar's Office to determine whether the IBM machines had quit working. The Registrar's secretary informed us that the machines had been acting up and if we wanted more information to call a certain exclusive extension number.

WE CALLED. An anonymous voice finally answered and amid the clicks and clacks, squeaks and squalls of tortured IBM's, the answer came: "No, there's nothing wrong with my machines."

Again our reply, "Hmmm."

So after all these trials and tribulations we now ask the Registrar's Office, "How are you fixed for grades?"

Buying association gets first delivery

The Manerud-Huntington Fuel Co. made the first fuel oil deliveries Sunday to the fraternities participating in the house manager's cooperative buying association.

THIS IS PART of a buying program that the fraternities are testing this year. By using cooperative buying, they plan to buy more economically.

L. A. Mangels, assistant dean of men, has said that in a period of perhaps five or six years, the fraternities will be buying all their house supplies cooperatively.

Such programs are not new to fraternities. Oregon State college has been participating in a similar program for several years.

At present, the group has only contracted to purchase fuel oil on a cooperative basis. This term they plan to look into the buying of meat and produce.

East Asian group to meet Thursday

"Agriculture in Red China" will be the topic discussed at the first winter term meeting of the University East Asian Society at 8 p.m. Thursday in the SU.

Ramon Ross, graduate student in the UO School of Education, will report on recent agricultural developments in Communist China.

The meeting is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

UO faculty member has article published

Roy J. Sampson, assistant professor of transportation, was among the contributors to a special issue of the Iowa Business Review.

The article, entitled "What's Wrong with Railroad Ratemaking?" was among those appearing in the issue named "Current Problems in the Regulation of Utilities." Other contributors are faculty members for the University of Wyoming, University of Iowa and University of Wisconsin.

The publication is sponsored by the University of Iowa Bureau of Business and Economic Research.

Arnold Air Society initiates members

Colonel Horace D. Neely, head of the Department of Military and Air Science, was initiated into the Arnold Air Society with nine junior and senior Air Force cadets in a special ceremony last term.

Seniors initiated were Philip S. Northcote and David W. Gault. New junior members are William S. Hogan, Keith R. Korpela, Noel A. Lesley, Peter Bach, John M. Elle, Roger R. Comeau and Robert T. Paine.

The University's squadron of the society, a national honorary for outstanding advanced Air Force students, is named for General Don Zimmerman, a University graduate and ex-official at the Air Force Academy.
