

Worldwide news in pictures

TED NOTHAFT (left) and Al Welenofsky, both 22 and from Nutley, New Jersey, aren't mixed up, they know what they're doing as they haul a canoe across the snow in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The pair are on their way home after starting in their canoe at Hammond, Oregon, April 5, and being frozen off the rivers in Canada. They took to the highway and have been walking since October 4. They hope to arrive in New Jersey this April.

SET TO FLY—A novel sight in Bonn, Germany, was this motorcyclist with wheels on ground and wings on his back. He was going to a model plane contest.

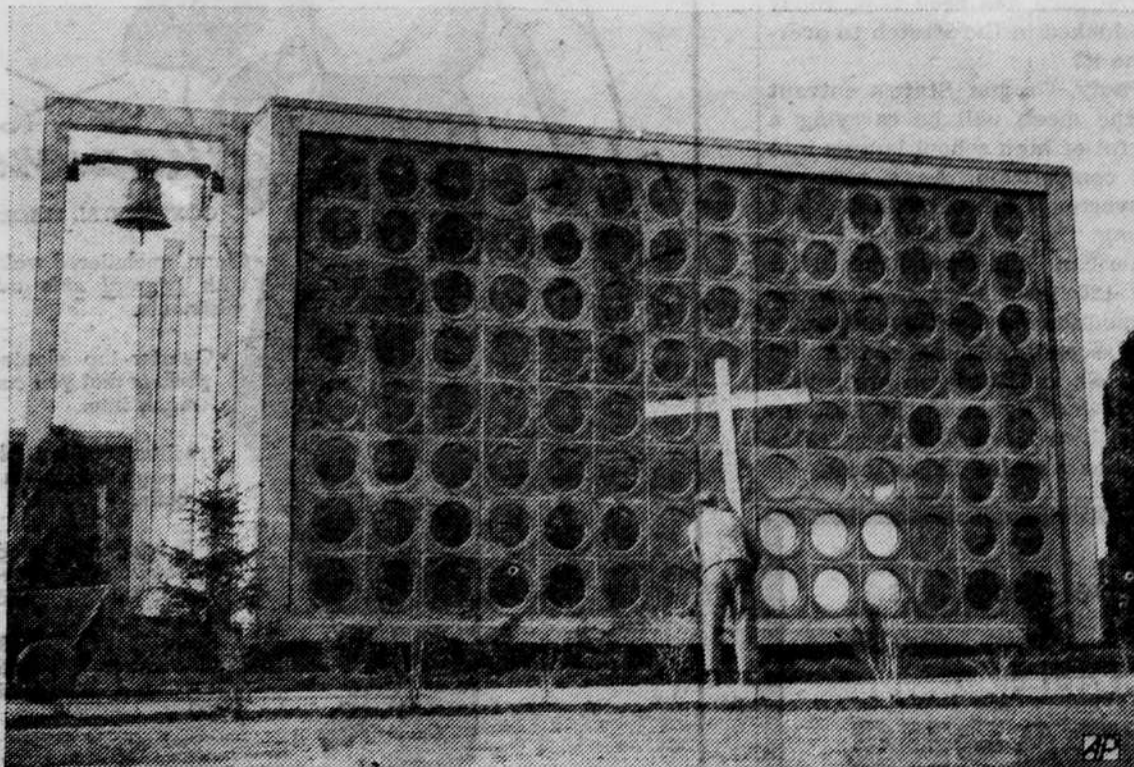

BARBARA ROMACK, former national amateur golf champion, shows an example of what she means when she says the touring women golfers are starting to look as good as they swing. The pert blonde from Sacramento, California, who is now in the pro ranks, said in New York City that women golfers have learned that fans want more than a good shot—they want sex appeal on the course.

JIM OWENS (right), University of Washington head football coach, grins as Washington governor Albert D. Rossellini offers congratulations on the young mentor's selection as Seattle's Man Man of the Year in sports for 1959. Owens, 32, honored at a civic banquet, guided the Washington Huskies to a 9-1 season and a 44-8 win over Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl.

VETERAN LIGHT-HEAVYWEIGHT champion Archie Moore used his right to good advantage in this animated conversation with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson at a dinner in New York City.

CHAPEL WITH LIGHT—One hundred and twelve round windows form the greater part of the front wall of a new chapel in Dudenhofen, West Germany. Construction costs of modernistic structure in the Rhensih Palatinate were around $15,000.

FOR THE SPRING SEASON—These two creations among the fashion highlights for the spring of this year. At left is key-checked wool coat featuring the new melon silhouette. It was designed by Monte-Sano. Right is figure-molded short evening dress by Ben Reig. It is skin-tight, bare-topped, and all-shirred sheath with distracting "flirt flounce" with a diamond brooch at hemline.