Meet to study jobs and projects

By GAIL DAVIDSON

Now is the time to begin thinking about plans for the summer. There are ample opportunities for women to travel, study, and work with summer campus and service groups. Inquiries about various opportunities should be made now so that applications may be submitted at an early date.

THE YWCA upperclass commission, led by chairman Katherine "Kitsie" Diack, will discuss such opportunities at a meeting tonight at 6:45 at the YWCA lounge at Gerlinger Hall. The meeting will be open to women interested in gaining new and different experiences during the summer.

Mary Jo Augustine, Diana Scott and Carolyn Bonebrake will tell the group about their recent experiences with summer jobs and projects.

Miss Scott worked for a social agency in New York for two and one half months last summer. Her work dealt with a Jewish community in a Brooklyn area that is rapidly becoming a slum district.

A MAJOR in sociology, Miss Scott said that such projects contribute actual experience to various fields of major study. She acquired the job through the National Student YWCA, and lived at a YWCA with about 30 other women who were participating in similar projects.

Carolyn Bonebrake worked on the island of Oahu (one of the Hawaiian islands) as a Girl Scout counselor for 12 weeks last summer. Miss Bonebrake was one of 15 counselors at a camp of 120 girls.

Miss Bonebrake, who acquired the job by writing the Girl Scout center at Oahu, said that many such counseling jobs in the United States and abroad are available. Information may be acquired by writing any Girl Scout office.

Mary Jo Augustine was employed for the summer at Crater Lake National Park. She said that information about park jobs may be obtained by writing the National Park Service. Miss Augustine worked for a concession company recommended by the park service.

OPPORTUNITIES for travel and work, both in the United States and overseas, are made available by such organizations as the YWCA, YMCA and American Friends Service Committee.

One YWCA-YMCA sponsored project is a USA-USSR student exchange program. Traveling in groups of 12, each with a trained leader, the group will spend over a month in the Soviet Union. The trip will include a tour of a Soviet sports camp and visits to Eastern European countries.

Another overseas project offers women the opportunity of working in Turkey, Mexico or Belgium with YWCA summer programs.

Summer projects in the states include social work in slum areas of New York, service in community programs in Seattle, and an industrial seminar in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Students participating in the Seattle project would study and work with the social effects of urbanization and serve as staff members with small welfare agencies. The industrial seminar offers participants the chance to study effects of industry and mechanized labor on society while they are holding regular factory jobs.

A WASHINGTON student citizenship seminar makes jobs available to typists and stenographers in government agencies. Participating students live cooperatively and study government problems. Civil service examinations are required.

European seminars are sponsored by such groups as the Lisle Fellowship foundation. Students participating in such projects study political, economic, social and religious patterns and problems of various foreign countries.

It's a puzzlement:

When you're old enough to go to college, you're old enough to go out with girls. When you're old enough to go out with girls, who needs college? Oh well, there's always Coke.
