

Spring concert slated for this weekend

By DULCY MORAN
Emerald Staff Writer

Five dance numbers will be featured at the spring concert scheduled April 1 and 2 at 8 p.m. in the University Theatre by students from contemporary dance classes.

THE NUMBERS, choreographed by Frances Dougherty and Jean Weakland, program directors, and students are "The Adding Machine," "The Prediction," "The Hat," "Hot Sunday," and "Rites De Passage."

THE LONGEST selection, "The Adding Machine," is based on a play of the same name and will be presented in six scenes through dancing and narration.

Al Ericson and Patti James are cast in the main roles as Mr. and Mrs. Zero. Dee Stone plays Daisy. Kay Cook, Donna Forbes, Brenda Borek, and Sandra Laing backed by the dance classes complete the cast.

The dance is a comment on man in a mechanized world and his tendency to become non-creative in such an environment. Mr.

Zero is a man caught in a web of mechanization and has become a push-button slave.

AL ERICSON, Carl Spiegelberg, and Sharon Burdett dance the leads in "The Prediction." This dance deals with the prediction of the end of the world.

"The Hat," danced by Arden Johnson, Larry Williams, Neil Howard, Ken Dethman, and Marston Morgan, demonstrates how a hat makes a man.

"Hot Sunday" is a satire on people whose social ideas are at extreme opposites. It will be danced by Agnes Bryson, Barbara Brooks, Kay Cook, Dee Stone, Marty Thompson, Al Ericson, Philip Klindt, and Marian Harris.

"RITES DE PASSAGE" is a take-off on a dance done in primitive societies during a special ceremony when a person changes social roles.

People of the primitive societies believed that at this time the soul is endangered and the dance is done to insure the safety of the person. The music for the number was composed by Bruno Madrid, a graduate student in music.

Other dancers appearing in the program are Janet Musal, Paula Cook, Barbara Tillmans, Linda Carey, Marcia Callis, Virginia Brown, Mareen Sledge, Alike Gamiatsos, Sharon Douglass, Janet Trask, Bob Carsner, Beverly Wade, Betty Pollock, Suzanne Kujac, Margie Johnson, and Katherine Cumming.

Admission to the program is 75 cents and tickets will be available at the UT box office or the Student Union.

Glaciers . . .

He went on to say that glaciers are very sensitive to their environment. For example, their movement depends greatly on such factors as the wind and sun. This is known as Glacial Meteorology, a field in which there is still much studying to be done. A better understanding of glaciers must be attained before one can predict their behavior.

PROFESSOR SHARP also discussed stagnant or "dead" glaciers, and glacial structure, of which there are several types.

He concluded by showing slides of the various glacial structures to demonstrate the beauty seen in glaciers. The lecture was followed by a question and answer period.

In his Thursday night lecture, Professor Sharp will discuss the Blue Glacier in the Olympics of Washington. This final talk will be more specific.

Labor unions . . .

(Continued from page 1) from this business unionism to social unionism. The unions would like to see all groups getting more, and they hope to accomplish this through legislation. He cited the minimum wage law and labor's efforts for federal aid to education as instances in which the unions are working for the benefit of the entire population.
