

What about AWS rules? . . .

reviewed many, many opinions are expressed. Those opinions are collected by an AWS committee, evaluated and finally summarized and made applicable to University women for the following year.

THE RULES governing women this year were drawn up by a committee composed of the AWS cabinet, the presidents of Heads of Houses, the women's Co-op Board, two freshman dormitories, one upperclass dormitory, a dormitory counselor, a representative of Panhellenic, and a representative from the women's rules revision committee of the previous year.

According to the rules brochure, all AWS rules must be reviewed every spring by such a committee, prior to adoption for the following academic year.

In house meetings Monday night women's groups again discussed the rules and proposed changes. Tuesday, presidents of living organizations and counselors will discuss the results of their house meeting discussions with Reference Board members.

WOMEN WHO HAVE NOT had an opportunity to voice their opinion on this year's rules and proposed changes are invited to attend Tuesday's meeting at 3:30 p.m. in the Student Union, according to Molly Burke, Reference Board chairman. Room number will be posted under "Reference Board."

After Tuesday's meeting a rules revision committee similar to the one that made a final decision on this year's rules will decide what AWS rules should be revised for the 1960-61 academic year, bearing in mind the opinions that women have voiced in previous meetings concerning rules.
