Young journalists to meet at UO

Annually for 34 years there has been an Oregon High School Press Conference. This year the conference will be hosted by the University School of Journalism on October 7 and 8.

APPROXIMATELY 800 high school journalists and advisers will attend the conference.

Main speaker will be George Fenneman, the announcer on Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life." At a banquet on Oct. 7, he will in an "informal" manner answer questions from the delegates. Sitting with him at the head of the table will be a panel of high school questioners.

AMONG OTHER things Fenneman will talk about his assignments with Orson Wells, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, Dick Hymes, Abbott and Costello, Jack Webb, Marx and other entertainers.

Fenneman claims his background in journalism is not much: "we do subscribe to the New York Times and Newsweek."

There will be sixty speakers at the conference including editors, reporters, advertising and public relations men, printers, Morgan, Kent, Wash. and Sharyl Gillis, Casper, Wyo.

ZETA TAU ALPHA — Nancy Grommesh, Portland; Marilyn Pike, Eugene; Eleanor Spencer, Coos Bay; Marilyn Patsy Gullikson and Judith Ann Hammer, both of Gresham; Janet Hurd, Harrisburg; Evon Faller, Lebanon; Gloria Cahan, Merrill; Elizabeth Wickstrom, Oswego; Marilyn Helland, Roseburg; Karen Speicher, Springfield; Jane Hamilton, Los Angeles, Calif.; Julie Martin, Menlo Park, Calif.; Joan Stevens, Northridge, Calif.; Carol Spicer, San Anselmo, Calif.; Ellen Van Dyke, San Francisco, Calif.; Polly Hill, Woodside, Calif.; Ldene Hoadley, Caldwell, Idaho and Linda Peterson, Pocatello, Calif.

artists, advisers and teachers. A variety of meetings are planned for Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

INCLUDED AS speakers are Will Lindley, University of Puget Sound; Joseph Adams, University Medical School at Portland; Andy Guffin of Taylor Publishing Company, and Wendy Ray, Eugene radio station KUGN. Faculty and staff members of the School of Journalism will also speak.

Emerald to hold open house Tues.

Freshmen and other students interested in working for the campus paper are cordially invited to an open house in The Daily Emerald office, 301 Allen Hall, Tuesday, at 4 p. m.

Positions available are proofreader, general assignment reporter, beat reporter, photographer, feature writer, sports writer, re-writer, and desk editor. The advertising department needs ad solicitors and a secretary.

Students with previous Emerald experience or with high school paper or yearbook experience are welcome, but no previous experience is necessary.

Refreshments will be served. Dress will be campus clothes.

UT plans open house; all students invited

The University Theater will hold its annual fall Open House Sunday, Sept. 25, from 6:30 to 8 p. m. The informal gathering—for old and new students and faculty of any department—is to acquaint the student with UT personnel and plan. The Open House is free.

Season tickets on sale for University Theatre shows

University Theatre season tickets for the 1960-61 season can be purchased by students during fall term registration.

Season tickets now cost $6 for $8 worth of admissions. They are good for six major productions and two "extras," or two billings in the University Film Series, or any combination of attractions. Season tickets are transferable from play to play or may all be used on one event.

Students who have not already received their blue calendar of the 1960-61 UT season can pick one up on the SU mezzanine along with ticket order blanks, where the tickets can be assessed on their fee card to be paid in the business office as the last step of registration.

Deadline for renewals of season tickets is Thursday. Anyone wanting a favored priority position must have made their payment at the box office by 5:30 p.m. or have ordered their ticket through registration.

Season tickets will be honored for the special productions of "Rashomon," Sept. 29 and 30 and Oct. 1, and are available either at the UT box office, DI 2-1411, Ext. 441, from 1 to 5:30 p.m., or the SU information booth from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., this week.
