

Ducks Face Stanford in Pair

The Stanford Indians and the Oregon Ducks meet tonight in the first of a pair of basketball games. The second game will be played Saturday. The series marks the start of a long home stand at McArthur Court for the Ducks who will play nine of their next ten there.

Stanford comes to Oregon with a 5-5 record. The Indians' most recent game was a 53-52 victory over California earlier in the week. The Indians won even though the game was played on Cal's home floor.

Stanford has also gained a 59-56 victory over nationally-ranked Utah in the opening week of the season.

For the first time in many years, the Indians have plenty of strength on the boards. Their front line consists of 6-3 John Hendry, 6-8 John Windsor, and 6-7 center Mike Ledgerwood. Ledgerwood played his high school basketball at Grant High in Portland.

Oregon coach Steve Belko was a little uncertain as to his starting lineup Thursday. "Glenn Moore and Charlie Warren will open at center and forward, but I haven't decided for sure on the other three positions," said the affable Webfoot mentor.

Denny Strickland, 6-5 senior, may move up to a forward spot, opposite Warren, for the Stanford series. This would leave the guard spots open to veterans Butch Kimpton and Leon Hayes. Johnny Mack, a fast-improving sophomore, will also see some action against the Indians.

Belko was more specific on being back home after playing seven out of nine on the road. "We're glad to be back," Belko remarked, "and I'm sure it isn't going to hurt us any to play on our own floor for a while."

Tipoff time for both games is 8 p.m. The Oregon Frosh will play, in preliminary games, against the Oregon College JV's on Friday and against Sweet Home AAU on Saturday. Both Frosh games start at 6 p.m.

Probable Starting Lineups

| STANFORD | | | OREGON | | |
|----------|-----------------|------|------------------|-----|--|
| Ht. | Player | Pos. | Player | Ht. | |

LEON HAYES has been the playmaker so far this season for Oregon. The clever guard is expected to be in the lineup when the Ducks meet Stanford tonight.

Duck Wrestlers Face Utah, WSU

The University of Oregon wrestlers face two of the better teams in the West this weekend at McArthur Court. On Friday, the University of Utah grapplers will be in action and on Saturday, it will be Washington State. Both meets will follow the Stanford basketball games and will last to about 10:45.

THE UTE mat squad, coached by Marv Hess, placed second in the powerful Skyline Conference last year behind Wyoming. Utah has two returning conference champions—Doug Bingham at 130 and Frank Hankin at 157. Hankin is a two-time conference champion. The Utes also have Art Galvez, 123, who placed third in the conference a year ago.

Washington State, second in the PCI last year, has practically their entire team returning. The Cougars boast a twin-brother act. They are Bryce and Bruce Cook who wrestle at 130 and 137. Other outstanding Cougar wrestlers include: Bill Berry, a two-time PCI champion who was an All-Coast guard in football in 1959; Larry Olson, twice runner-up in the PCI at 157; Jerry Campbell, 2nd in the PCI at 167; and Jerry Conine, 2nd last year in the PCI at 177.

COACH MIKE REUTER is not optimistic about the Ducks' chances against these two strong teams. "We're badly hurt by eligibility losses at 167 and 177. In fact, we may even have to forfeit these two weights this weekend," Reuter disclosed Thursday.

Reuter listed Oregon's probable lineup as: Dennis Wisby or Ken Thayer at 123; Jerry Mescher or Tim Latta at 130; Joe McFarland at 137; Chester Scott or Lynn Mathews at 147; Don Hoiness at 157; and Garry Stensland at heavyweight. Stensland placed second in PCI competition last year, while McFarland and Hoiness placed third.
