

WUS Committees Active In Europe

By MERRIE WHITESIDE

(This is the second in a series of four stories concerning the programs of the World University Service throughout the world.)

Europe is probably the area which requires the least amount of aid from WUS, yet help in certain areas is still needed.

There is a shortage of textbooks in Salonika and Athens, and the cost of those available is generally so high that many students cannot afford to purchase them. The University libraries provide no more than two or three copies of each textbook, which are sufficient to meet the needs of only a minority. Mimeographing projects have been set up by the Athens and Salonika WUS Committees to duplicate lecture notes, and to mimeograph textbooks. Both types of publications are sold as cheaply as possible and therefore cost the student only a fraction of what he would otherwise have to pay.

The University of Salonika has contributed premises and initial working capital for a printing house and bookstore to expand this project, but for a full realization of the project a total of $24,000 will be required. It is hoped that $1,000 will be raised by WUS/UNESCO gift coupons.

In Europe, where other student needs are now met with comparative adequacy, the problem of student mental health has assumed first importance. Accordingly, WUS has decided to organize a European conference of experts on the subject, and currently preparations are in progress to hold the Conference in September, in Switzerland, with the Swiss WUS Committee acting as the host.

It is expected that there will be two to three experts representing each of the 13 European countries where WUS is operating, who will meet for a period of seven to eight days. One participant from each country will prepare a paper outlining the nature of the problem in his country, with its general educational and cultural background, and the methods used and experience gained in dealing with it.

In the French Alps near Mont Blanc there is a rest center, Camboux, for students sponsored by WUS. The center is open to students between the ages of 17 and 30 who require rest to regain their health and continue their studies.

Although Europe has a widespread program to improve their educational standards and facilities, the help of WUS is necessary for the continuation of its programs.

CARL SPIEGELBERG, Kayrin Hudson, and Karen Higgins are shown in a scene from "The Enchanted." The curtain goes up at 8 p.m. tonight at the University Theatre.

Lindholm Article In Advertising Age

In an article appearing in the March 6, 1961, issue of Advertising Age, Dr. Richard W. Lindholm, Dean of the School of Business Administration, warns that "Legislation is certain to come to the advertising industry, and ad men would do well to work with legislators for laws that will provide regulation satisfactory to all."

DEAN LINDHOLM continued, "Unless ad men work with lawmakers, the ad industry may find 'witch hunts' under way and ultimately, excessively restrictive controls on advertising."

"The government has the right and will always be very much concerned with the continued effectiveness of our free private enterprise system."

"ADVERTISING plays a very important role in the functioning of our private enterprise system. This role must be properly performed and it generally is. But in certain situations the role would be greatly improved if the law of the land would assist the advertiser in doing what he knows is right but which he cannot do because of certain types of pressures that develop."

14% Increase Shown In Spring Enrollment

Spring term enrollment at the end of the second week of classes at the University was 6,749, a 14 per cent increase over the 5,913 students enrolled Spring term of last year, according to figures tabulated at the registrar's office.

The total enrollment for Winter term at the close of the registration was 7,095. The decrease is considered a normal pattern of drop-out.

Women total 39 per cent or 2,633 of the total enrollment; 4,116 men are enrolled.

The College of Liberal Arts continues to lead in enrollment with 4,941 students, an increase of 21 per cent over last spring term.
