New Fabric Being Shown

By NANCY KNOX
Asst. Women's Editor

Spring and summer are bringing lots of new looks in fabrics and textiles designs, and if you look closely, you'll find most of them in the Eugene dress shops.

One of the newest finishes for heavy cottons, to be found particularly in straight skirts, is called Turbrite. It is crease resistant, easy to wash and iron, and it retains its crispness almost indefinitely.

Arnel has come out with a variation of their traditional fabric for spring. It is crisper, and less opaque—no see-through. The name of this new fabric is "Sea Fair."

Of course, the most popular of the cottons, especially for busy college coeds, is the wash-and-wear material. These are being shown particularly in beige, taupe, lavender, blue, coral and shocking pink. If you're interested in making your own new fashions, keep an eye on check prints, shagbark, and tailored prints that imitate the well-known Lanz line.

Glen of Michigan is showing frocks fashioned of 100% wool in such a light weave that one would swear it was cotton. These are truly beautiful pieces of material.

For casual wear, capris are featuring the long-leg look again, with vertical stripes in heavy weaves and knits. Another feature that the long pants have shown this year, and that is fairly unique, are stretch pants on the order of winter ski-pants. They have an under arch strap to keep them from riding up when you sit, which is detachable, and they don't fit like girdles. They are slim and trim, and a good bet for any lady that is out to impress the fellows. They don't even bag in the knees!

For the beach, pay particular attention to the knit suits this year. They have been improved to flatter the figure with moulded accents built right in the suit. Some of the new fabrics to be found in these suits are a lighter, brighter nylon knit, and a combination cotton and rubber knit that gives a "Terry-cloth" effect.

Watch for the new materials, and buy them. They not only give you a new look, but a new feeling, too.

Hamlet Opens Friday at UT

William Shakespeare's "Hamlet" opens Friday, May 19, on the University Theatre main stage.

SHAKESPEARE'S immortal words will come to life in performances May 19, 20, 24, 25, 26 and 27. The play, which has captivated audiences around the world for more than 300 years, displays Shakespeare's mastery of conveying characterization, action, suspense in loaded, moving poetic lines.

Director William McGraw is working with experienced UT actors for Hamlet. Robert Stankavitch, the junior in speech who will play Prince Hamlet, has done roles for the UT, VLT, movies and television. He has received the UT best acting award, and may be remembered in his most recent UT roles of the King in "The King and I" and Sitting Bull in "Annie Get Your Gun."

JANET LEE PARKER, who won the UT best actress award as a freshman and was last seen on the UT stage as Annie Oakley, will play Ophelia. Edward Winter, who has won best acting awards twice, will play King Claudius. Queen Gertrude will be portrayed by Joyce Niedringhaus Enns, a veteran of UT and summer stock productions.

Ophelia's father Polonius will be played by Douglas Zug, who was seen earlier this year as the elderly servant in "The Cherry Orchard." Zug and Edward Winter have both been awarded scholarships as members of the Oregon Shakespeare Festival Company in Ashland for this summer.

THE UT production of Hamlet will be the first performance of the play on a Eugene stage since 1932. Director McGraw has cut the play so it will run a little less than three hours. McGraw has also designed the set for the play.

Tickets must be reserved by calling the box office DI 2-1411, ext. 441, between 1-5 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Admission is $1.00.
