Harris hopes for stadium financing okay next month

Athletic Director Leo Harris hopes that University President Arthur Flemming will give his approval for a plan of financing to a new athletic stadium early in December.

Harris said Tuesday that the Athletic Department is waiting for the presidential go-ahead before formulating concrete plans for financing the stadium.

BUT ONE thing is for sure: If the President okays the stadium, construction will begin, using money the athletic department already has (between $400,900 and $500,000), just as soon as the plan of financing can be devised.

Estimated total cost of the proposed 40,000-seat structure would be $1,750,000.

FORMER University President O. Meredith Wilson approved construction of the stadium. He left to become President of the University of Minnesota shortly thereafter. Harris said the Athletic Department preferred not to hold new President Flemming to Wilson's decision, and therefore has been waiting for him to act.

As late as last spring, a complete cost-breakdown plan for the stadium has been devised. It never was official, according to Harris, and is now even more tentative.

ALTHOUGH THERE are no figures available, except for the Athletic Department's contribution to the stadium, three other sources would probably be used to build the structure.

They are:

- Contributions. The athletic department may solicit, among others, one single major contributor, for whom the stadium could be named.

- Sale of permanent seats to donors on a permanent basis for various prices and at various locations in the stadium.

- A bond issue. A sum would be borrowed from some source on a 30-year payment basis. In order to bond, a pledge would have to be made against the issue for its repayment. Probable sources from which the money could be repaid are student building fees, future athletics income and contributions.

If it is built, the new stadium will be located approximately one mile from the campus on the north bank of the Willamette River, directly across from the physical plant, on 92 acres of land already purchased by the athletic department.

THE STRUCTURE would have 40,000 seats on the sidelines with no end zone seats. Instead, there would be end zone parking for approximately 400 cars where fans could watch the game without leaving their automobiles.

Each side of the stadium would have 20,000 seats, with 11,000 built of concrete on-filled area covering 50 rows and the other 9,000 in 34 rows in a reinforced concrete structure on top of the fill. The total seating includes 22,000 seats in the bowl and 18,000 in the raised structure.

THE STADIUM would be built to within 20 feet of the sidelines, bringing seats closer to the action than in most stadiums. The seats would be made of wood fastened to concrete base.

The fill for the first 50 rows on either side would be obtained by grading the overall site toward the field to not only provide the basic fill but also to aid in drainage. The field itself would be eight to 10 feet below ground level.

Rothert to lead yells', hulabaloo at Stanford

Steve Rothert, yell duke, will co-ordinate rally squad activities at the Stanford game, according to Dick Morton, Rally Board Chairman.

ROTHERT WILL take over the duties of Ted Maier, formerly Yell King, who was asked to resign by the Rally Board. Although Maier claims that he did not resign, he will comply with the wishes of the ASUO Cabinet and Rally Board not to act as Yell King.

Tuesday Dan Williams, ASUO President, said that Maier was not fired, but rather that the Rally Board asked for his resignation.

He said that the Rally Board realized that final action on the resignation would have to be taken by the ASUO Senate.

"The officiality of the issue is in the hands of the Senate," Williams said.

Phil Sherburne, ASUO Senator, who has criticized the action taken by the ASUO Cabinet, Tuesday quoted from the Rally Board Charter and the ASUO Constitution to support his claims about the unconstitutionality of the action.

SU mugs, cutlery thefts hit peak

Thefts of articles from the SU Fishbowl have reached a new high this term, according to Jack Cross, SU night manager.

ABOUT $650 worth of cutlery, coffee mugs and other equipment has been stolen in the last four weeks.

Cross said that "this year has been the worst of any of the fall terms" and noted that thefts of SU equipment are usually high during the fall term.

He blamed the thefts on "lack of cooperation" and stated that the losses are a "major contributing factor" in the "rising costs of food" in the fish bowl.

Tickets allotted for Homecoming

Distribution of student reserved seat tickets for the Oregon-Oregon State Homecoming game at Hayward Field on Nov. 25 (Thanksgiving weekend) will begin at 4 p.m. Thursday, at the McArthur Court ticket offices, ASUO president Dan Williams announced today.

The ticket windows will remain open until 9 p.m. Thursday evening and then distribution will continue during regular ticket office hours until the deadline of 5 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 15. The regular office hours are from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 12 noon Saturdays.

The student ticket distribution plan, Williams said, is the same as adopted two years ago by the ASUO Senate and successfully used at the 1959 Oregon-Oregon State Homecoming game at Hayward Field.

Each student holding an athletic card is entitled to one reserved seat in the student section for the game and must present his athletic card for validation when picking up his student ticket for the Beaver game.

There will be no group assignment of seats and each ticket must be picked up individually by the holder of the athletic card. The single exception will be for married students, who may purchase a reserved spouse ticket for $2.00 at the same time they secure their own reserved seat. This will insure their being seated together at the game.

Others who wish to sit in groups are urged to pick up their tickets together so adjoining seat locations may be assigned.

Williams said the two exceptions would be the members of the Frosh 200 and the Drakes, both groups recognized by the Rally Board. Members of these two organizations will be seated in special sections and will be assigned seats in these areas by identifying themselves at the ticket windows and they will be checked against special roster lists furnished the athletic ticket office by their student leaders.

Losers' signs must be removed

ASUO primary election candidates are reminded that those who lose in the primary must have their campaign material down by noon Thursday.

Election rules say that there will be no campaigning from 8 a.m. to 12 midnight Wednesday.

Sig Eps awarded IFC Wilson Cup

Sigma Phi Epsilon is the first fraternity to win the Wilson Cup.

The award was presented at the Inter-Fraternity Council banquet last night. It is named for former University President O. Meredith Wilson and presented to the outstanding UO fraternity providing that it ranks above the all-men's academic average.

OTHER MAJOR awards presented during the evening program were the over-all scholarship presentation to Tau Kappa Epsilon; greatest academic improvement, Lambda Chi Alpha; pledge class scholarship, Theta Chi; and community service, Beta Theta Pi.

Individual citations went to Dan Williams, ASUO president and member of Theta Chi, who received the Coyle Cup for outstanding citizenship and to Donald J. Lashway, recipient of the Chapter advisor award. Lashway is advisor to Lambda Chi Alpha.

Douglas Ragen was named as the freshman with highest scholarship for last year.

OVER-ALL intramural trophy went to Alpha Tau Omega, which also won awards for golf, track, and tennis. Beta Theta Pi took individual sports honors in football, "A" and "B" basketball, wrestling, and handball.

Others included "A" volleyball, Kappa Sigma; "B" volleyball, Sigma Nu; bowling, Phi Kappa Sigma, and softball, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

THETA CHI was announced as the outstanding chapter in region 9. House library citations went to Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Chi.

William C. Jones, dean of administration and keynote speaker for the banquet program, had warm praise for the University fraternity system in his address, "The University and Tradition."

"IT IS YOUR houses which will in great measure determine the stature of the University in the days ahead," he said.

He called on the Greek system to build a tradition of "calm, free, objective and unemotional evaluation of the situation which our society finds itself in."

Jones went on to warn that "you are encountering the collegiate experience which is usu-

Durno to open Paul Revere discussion

Congressman Edwin Durno has announced that he will appear at the University this evening with the Paul Revere Panel.

The panel will meet in the SU ballroom at 7:30 p.m. and will discuss the domestic policies of the Kennedy administration and the Democratic-Controlled Congress.

MEMBERS OF THE panel will be four U. S. Congressmen: Robert Griffin, Michigan, co-sponsor of the Landrum-Griffin Labor Act; Peter Dominick, Colorado; Charles Goodell, New York; and John Anderson, Illinois. Congressman Durno said that he will introduce the panel.

President Flemming will welcome the Congressmen to the campus. Mayor Edward Cone of Eugene and Oregon State Legislators will also be present at the panel discussion.
