

Theses Now Microfilmed

Candidates for masters degrees at the University now have an extra challenge. Since early this year, masters theses judged superior by a faculty examining committee have been microfilmed and added to the "Masters Abstracts" collection.

ORDINARILY, masters theses are bound and placed on library shelves. They may be borrowed through the inter-library loan system.

For several years, dissertations by candidates for doctoral degrees at the University have been microfilmed by University Microfilms, a Michigan company.

ON NOV. 9, 1960, the graduate council of the university approved the policy of microfilming the masters theses. The first one was put on film in January of this year.

The faculty committee responsible for reading the thesis and certifying the candidate's completion of graduate work recommends approval of inclusion of the thesis in "Master's Abstracts." Then the candidate makes arrangements with the Audio-Visual Department of the library to have his paper microfilmed. He must pay a $15 fee.

Some of the theses which have been selected for microfilming are: "The Compulsory Arbitration of Labor Disputes in Norway"; "Some Aspects of De-Tribalization in Kurdistan; The Role of the Sheikhs"; and "The Geology of the North Central Part of the Sawtooth Creek Quadrangle, Oregon." About 20 theses have been microfilmed since the program began.
