

Photo Exhibit Scheduled

A photographic exhibition presenting a review of recent buildings using pre-cast concrete as a decorative material will be on display until Sept. 23 at the Museum of Art.

"Pre-Cast Concrete: New Shapes in Design" includes 25 panels showing detailed and broad views of institutional, public and commercial work done in the United States.

One of a series originated by the Architectural League of New York, the exhibition is traveling to art institutions and universities throughout the country under the auspices of the American Federation of Arts.

The museum is open from 12 noon to 4 p.m. daily except Monday.

Graduate School Receives Money

The Graduate School has received $167,500 from the U. S. Office of Education for 22 additional National Defense Education Fellowships for the 1962-63 academic year, Harry Alpert, Graduate School dean, has announced.

THE NEW awards raise to 96 the number of such fellowships given to the Graduate School since the program began four years ago. No other university in the nation has received more such awards under the NDEA program. The University is tied with Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., in the number of fellowships received.

For the preceding academic year the University received $165,000 for 26 fellowships.

THE NATIONAL Defense Education Fellowships were established by Congress to raise the level of graduate work in the nation. Several new faculty members have been added to the Graduate School to meet the increase in graduate work.
