

Senate Debates Salary Increases

SALEM (AP)—The Senate Education Committee heard conflicting testimony recently on a bill to raise the minimum salaries for teachers in the state.

The proposal would raise the minimum for teachers with bachelor's degrees from the present $3,700 to $4,400.

MERLIN SMITH, a teacher at Douglas High School in Portland and a member of the Oregon Education Association, testified that the bill would affect only about 112 teachers in the entire state, since most school districts now pay well above the proposed minimum. But he said it is important to "put a floor under the salaries."

Cecil Posey, executive secretary of the Oregon Education Association, said the state's minimum salary law for teachers is put in all recruiting literature that goes to other states. Although it would directly affect very few teachers, Posey said, it might make a great deal of difference in whether new teachers would decide to start in Oregon.

Tom Rigby of the Oregon School Boards Association said his organization was opposed to the measure as it has been in past sessions. He said the minimum salary law has had little effect in determining teachers' salaries in Oregon. He said the bill might affect salaries more than Posey and Smith said.

Jr. IFC To Clear Storm Damage

Junior Inter-Fraternity Council will join the citizens of Eugene Saturday in a joint work project to clear storm damage on Skinner's Butte.

Workers from all freshman fraternity pledge classes are invited to help on the project. Approximately 100 people are expected in both the morning and afternoon sessions, according to Larry Derr, Junior IFC treasurer. Box lunches will be supplied for workers by Junior Panhellenic.

Honors College To Discuss Society

Scientific and technological problems in transitional societies will be discussed at the Honors College panel discussion at 8 p.m. Monday.

The panel members are Homer Barnett, professor of anthropology; Francis Dart, associate professor of physics; John Gange, director of the Institute of International Studies.

Questions to be raised include the teaching of science, health problems, population growth, and the political consequences of a transition in society.

Dinner Tickets Now Available

Tickets for the annual dinner meeting of the Association of Patrons and Friends of the University Library, which will be held at 6:30 p.m. today in the Student Union, are available to members, prospective members, and others interested.

Guest speaker will be Bradford P. Millar, president of Portland State College. He will discuss "Georgian Nightingales: English Broadside and Ballad-Mongers of the Eighteenth Century," an area in which he is a scholar.

MEMBERSHIP in the Association, which was formed to promote the interests and acquisitions of the Library, is open to all interested persons. Information may be obtained from the Library office or from the Board of Directors, which is headed by James H. Gilbert.

Tickets are available in the University Librarian's Office.

Singers To Offer Winter Concert

The University Singers will feature "Avodath Hakodesh" (Sacred Service) by Ernest Block at the winter choral concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the School of Music Auditorium.

On the same program, the University Mixed Chorus will sing three Hungarian folksongs by Matyas Seiber: "The Handsome Butcher", "Apple, Apple", and "The Old Woman," and four psalms based on old Norwegian church melodies: "How Fair Is Thy Face," "God's Son Hath Set Me Free," "Jesus Christ Our Lord Is Risen," and "In Heav'n Above."

The University Chorale will present two motets by Bruckner for mixed voices and three trombones. Four folk songs by Brahms and the Bach motet, "Praise the Lord, All Ye Nations" also will be presented.

Max Risinger, associate professor of music and acting dean of the School of Music, will direct the Singers while Neil Wilson, assistant professor of voice, will direct the Mixed Chorus and the Chorale.

Mayer To Talk At Assembly

Milton Mayer, educator and author, will discuss "What Can A Man Do?" at the 1 p.m. assembly Tuesday, in the Student Union ballroom.

Mayer, affiliated with the American Friends Service Committee, has had articles in Life, Reader's Digest, Christian Century, and Harper's Magazine and has been a lecturer and representative at the Christian Peace Conference in Prague, Czechoslovakia, 1958-62.

A UNIVERSITY of Chicago graduate and newspaper and magazine writer, he has taught as an assistant professor of adult education and tutor for the Committee on Social Thought.

He has been a visiting professor of religion at William Penn College, a member of the faculty of the Institute for Social Research of Frankfurt University, Germany. He has taught at Ecole d'Humanite in Switzerland, and has been a guest professor in the Comenius Theological faculty in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Business School . . .

(Continued from page 1) dergraduate program was accredited in 1923.

Lindholm, who has written a number of books on public finance and banking, said the majority of the professors in the school are authors of several books being used by colleges.

Although the school plans to enlarge its faculty and attract more students, it does not intend to add any new programs in the foreseeable future, said Lindholm.

"We will try to do better what we are doing now," he said.

Stanford Prof To Speak in SU

Lewis Spitz, assistant professor of history at Stanford, will speak at the Graduate History Club luncheon today at noon in the Student Union. "History in a Metaphysical Key" will be the theme of his talk.

At 8 p.m. in the SU, Spitz, whose interest is Renaissance humanism in relation to the reformers, will also lecture on the "Course of Christian Humanism."

THE HISTORIAN received his A.B. from Concordia College, his M.A. from the University of Missouri and his Ph.D. at Harvard. He also studied at the Universities of Chicago, Washington and Vienna.

Spitz has also been a Fulbright Scholar, Guggenheim Fellow and Hunting Library Fellow and taught as a Fulbright at the University of Mainz.

He is presently on the editorial board of the "Journal of Modern History."

Among his several publications, his most important are "Conrad Celtis: The German Arch-Humanist," 1957, and "The Religious Renaissance of the German Humanists," 1963.

'Village Form' Subject of Lecture

Earl Moursund, assistant professor of architecture, will speak on the "Medieval Village Form" at 4 p.m. today in 106 Lawrence.

Moursund's lecture is a part of a series sponsored by the School of Architecture and Allied Arts.

Moursund graduated from the University of Texas in 1949. He received his masters degree in 1951 from Cranbrook Academy and has been at the University since 1955.

Classes In Drama To Give Programs

Two University acting classes will present portions of plays Monday and Tuesday at Villard Hall's laboratory theatre.

Horace Robinson's Technique of Acting class will enact scenes from "All the Way Home", "Hedda Garber", "The Captain's Paradise" and "Antigone" at 4 and 8 p.m. Tuesday.

At 4 and 8 p.m. Monday the Elements of Acting class, with Jean Cutler as instructor, will present portions of "The Intruder", "Amedee", "A Doll's House", "The Glass Menagerie", "Tobacco Road", "He Who Gets Slapped" and "How He Lied to Her Husband."

Job Manager To Talk Tuesday

Robert F. McCain, manager of Employee Development, Hyster Company, will speak at an open meeting sponsored by Alpha Kappa Psi, business fraternity at noon Tuesday in the Student Union.

His topic will be "The Consulting Psychologist: His Contribution in Improving Managerial Efficiency."

MCCAIN JOINED the Hyster firm in January of this year after six years as its consulting psychologist. He was employed with Humber, Mundie & McClary in Milwaukee, Wisconsin from 1956 to 1962 and prior to that, he was personnel psychologist for Kroger Company of Cincinnati. He has also taught courses in industrial and personnel psychology at the University of Wisconsin.

JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Interviews will be held March 8 for positions as elementary and secondary teachers in The Dalles.

Interviews will be held March 8 for positions as elementary teachers in Castro Valley, California.

Music Students To Present Recital

A recital of harpsichord, flute, organ and saxophone music will be presented by University students at 8 p.m. Monday, in the School of Music Auditorium.

THE PUBLIC recital will open with Bach's "giant" fugue: "We All Believe in One God." Other numbers to be performed are Domenico Scarlatti's "Partita 5 in G: Praeambulum" and "Concerto 3" for two keyboard instruments by Padre Antonio Soler.

Students participating will be David Farr, Barbara Possman, Kristine Goplen and Paul Haymond, organ; Lotti Schuh, Kathleen McIntosh, and Kathy Stockman, harpsichord.

SAXOPHONISTS will be Randall Moore, Howard Oshiro, Betty Varmen, and Barbara Bender. Maryann English, Rosemary Sievers, Vickie Fedor, Maryjim Stockton, and Lawrence Beach will play the flute.

Homer Keller, associate professor of music, will accompany Beach on the piano.

Job Opportunities

Lake Oswego Public Schools will interview teaching applicants Tuesday.

The Oregon Tax Commission is offering a job located on the West Coast to accounting majors or business administration majors with 18 term hours of Accounting. Interviews will be on Tuesday.

Colgate-Palmolive Co. offers a West Coast job to majors in business administration, liberal arts, marketing, and other related fields. Interviews will be Tuesday.

Bachelor of arts degree candidates from all academic fields who the interested in preparing for a career in international affairs will be interviewed by the American Institute for Foreign Trade for a Phoenix, Arizona, job. Interviews will be conducted Wednesday.

Representatives from the Sylvania Electronics Systems will be here Wednesday to interview candidates for jobs in Mountain View, Calif., Waltham, Mass., and Buffalo, N.Y. Majors desired, mathematics and physics.

Representatives from Milwaukee Public Schools will interview elementary and junior high teachers on March 7.

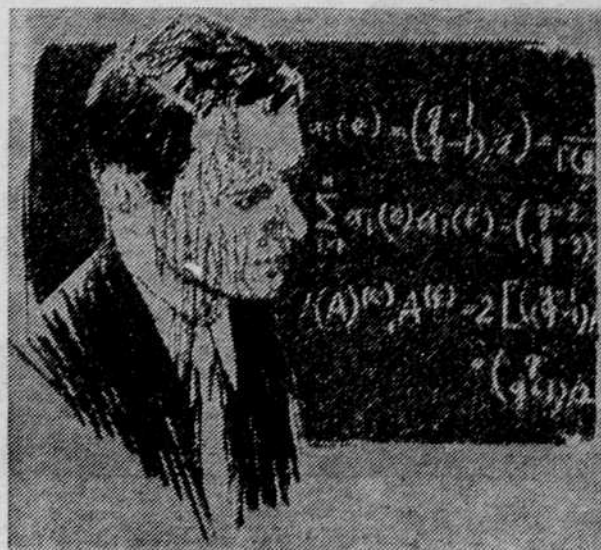

REA Express will interview business administration majors interested in a west coast job. Interviews will be held Wednesday.

Students interested in elementary teaching at Salem, Oregon, should attend a March 7 interview.

Use Emerald Classified Ads—

P.O. Box 32033, Los Angeles, California

IBM

Invites Ph.D. Degree Candidates

Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry

to meet

Dr. J. R. Werning
Representative of IBM Research and Development Laboratories
on March 8, 1963

For information, please call or visit the Campus Placement Office for appointment

IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer