News of the Week in Review

The week of Junior Weekend was jammed full of news, the biggest of which for most students was Junior Weekend itself—the Canoe Fete, the All-Campus Sing, the Mothers' Breakfast, the awards luncheon and a visit with Mom.

It all seemed to go without a hitch, except of course for the rain which moved the luncheon inside, to Mc Arthur Court, for the first time in several years.

There were the usual complaints about the slow pace of the Canoe Fete, of the tappings during the luncheon and even of the All-Campus Sing. But the crowds seemed bigger than ever, and they had to close the gates at the Canoe Fete, even with people standing four and five abreast along the bank in front of the stands.

But despite the smoothness which characterized the events and even despite the huge crowds, for some it was a time of questioning. The sign in the special events office on the third floor of the Student Union must have summed it up best, "Canoe Fete isn't an activity, it's a way of life." Maybe the individual who wrote the sign didn't realize what he was saying, and maybe he did. But we are sure that some of the seniors who have seen four years of student effort on the Fete and the Sing, who have seen hours and hours and hours of student time go into each float, into each of the 31 song teams which competed to get into the finals, and into the organization and administration of the weekend itself must have questioned the educational utility of the weekend, perhaps even questioned its very existence.

But if you didn't have Junior Weekend, what about Homecoming? And if you didn't have Junior Weekend and Homecoming, Dad's Weekend would have to go, wouldn't it? And if you didn't have Junior Weekend and Homecoming and Dad's Weekend, how would you decide who was to be selected for the honoraries? And how could our students learn to become effective administrators and organization men? Gosh, maybe it is a way of life.

Maybe there were also a few small voices who were beginning to question that way of University life.

New Constitution

The ASUO Senate finally began to move toward a revised constitution this past week. Several motions regarding representation and elections passed the Senate Thursday night and will be referred to the student body in a general election now set for May 21.

Long-awaited revisions in this out-dated document, will, we are sure, be accepted by the general student body. However, some have questioned the wisdom of revising it one part at a time. The constitutional committee, appointed by ASUO President Phil Sherburne, feels that the part concerning elections should be passed this Spring since it will take effect next year. The other parts to be revised are not so concerned with timing of events like elections.

Campsite or Classrooms

The Student Development Drive for a campsite for recreational and educational facilities fell short of its goal according to reports Thursday.

Some in the recreational area greeted the news with dismay, blaming the psychological effect of tuition raises, tight-fisted students, or the feeling on the part of students that a good camp could not be established through such a drive.

Others, with perhaps a little more insight, pointed the finger at the project itself. A camp, primarily for recreational purposes which would require much more of student monies than could be provided by just this one drive seemed to many unnecessary. To others, it seemed obviously contradictory to the pleas now being made by the State Board of Higher Education for building facilities for academic purposes. Why spend a large chunk of student monies for such a project, they reasoned, when it looks as if the University will be in dire need of such funds for more valid purposes, such as the construction of classrooms.

Final figures have not been released for the drive as of yet. We would hate to see the failure of this drive doom such drives for the future. For with a purpose more in line with an educational institution, the drive could be quite beneficial. Former ASUO President Neil Goldschmidt, has, in the past, talked about the possibility of such a drive, endowing a faculty chair. To many, such a drive would be much more in line with the financial squeeze the University may well find itself in after the legislature adjourns this year.

Only Seven

Somewhat quietly, seven students petitioned for delegates to NSA, the National Student Conference to be held in Bloomington, Indiana this summer. Five will be elected.

The small number was disappointing to many, primarily because it was hoped that a highly competitive election would make University students more responsible to their constituents on national and international matters that come before the Congress.

However, if the delegates are effective, their main function this first year will be to report back to the University with an objective evaluation of the merits of the organization for this associated student body.

Summer Program Selects 5 Students

Five University students were among the 12 Oregon students selected to participate in the Oregon Associations Internationale des Etudiants en Sciences Economiques et Commerciales program this summer.

The organization is a business-education venture designed to permit United States students to work abroad and provide temporary jobs in America for visiting students.

THE STUDENTS are Harlow Head, who will work in an Istanbul bank; Nancy Gaskill, who will work in a plywood firm office in Finland; Reginald Justus, with a British waterways board in London; Sam Muller, with a firm in The Netherlands; and Hugh Hensley, who will work with a bank in The Netherlands.

AIESEC-U.S. was founded in 1958 by business students at Columbia University and since has become the largest organization of its kind in the United States. It is student administered and is guided by a Board of Advisors drawn from the business and academic worlds. It is financed by fees from participating U.S. companies which are handled through AIESEC-U.S., Inc., a New York non-profit membership corporation.

THE INTERNATIONAL organization, formed in 1948 by students in seven European countries, today embraces 38 countries on five continents and has provided almost 20,000 exchange traineeships.

The program offers a student an opportunity for six weeks to six months to observe at first hand a foreign country's economic system in action. It offers remuneration sufficient to cover living and incidental expenses.

A total of 260 students across the United States were selected for participation in the program this summer.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

• Hui-O-Kamaaina will elect officers for next year at 6:45 tonight in the SU.

• Petitions for copy editor, sports editor, housing and organizations editor of the Oregonian staff are available on the third floor of the SU. They are due at 5 p.m. Friday.

• Interviews for the homecoming button committee will be held from 6:30 to 7:30 tonight in the SU. Interviews for the concert and dance committee will be from 7:30 to 9:30. Room number will be posted.

• The Education Survey Test for seniors planning to teach next year will be given from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Monday in 127 Education. Any teacher candidate who has not taken the exam at one of the previous two sessions should report for this final test period.

• The SU Games Committee is sponsoring a trapshoot Sunday in Cottage Grove. Bring your own shotgun and shells. Transportation will be provided from the turnaround of the SU at 11 a.m. All interested students should sign up at the main desk of the SU.

• The SU Games Committee will meet at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in the SU. Room number will be posted.

• Entries in the women's slalom, men's and women's exhibition, and rowboat race for the Waterski Tournament will be accepted until Monday. Exhibition competitors must fill out three racing forms and turn back into 301 SU by Tuesday.

VANISHING AMERICAN?

For the sake of your future and the future of your country, let's fervently hope not! But the sad fact is that too many gifted teachers are leaving our colleges for better paying positions.

The cause is fundamental. They simply cannot make ends meet on their present low salaries. And, much as they love their work, they are forced to seek jobs in other fields.

In the face of this discouraging trend, more classrooms keep getting more crowded. And by 1967, college applications are expected to double.

It's time to put a stop to this nonsense. Won't you help? Help the college of your choice now. The returns will be greater than you think.

If you want to know more about what the college crisis means to you, write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, New York.

"SHE WAS ONLY THE DEAN OF MEN'S DAUGHTER"

(But oh what a record she made)

The only trouble is, it's been banned. From the radio at least. In fact, the whole darn Capitol album, "Campus Confidential" by the Four Preps, has been banned. "She Was Only the Dean of Men's Daughter" and the other numbers, like "Princess Poo-poo-ly Has Plenty Papaya," are just a little too... well, colorful for air play.

This album was recorded during a Four Preps Concert at UCLA. Their performance was wildly appreciated by the students, and we strongly suspect it will be wildly appreciated by everyone who hears it on this new Capitol release. (With the sole exception of radio station owners who want to keep their stations on the air.)

So slip into your nearest record store for "Campus Confidential" on Capitol. (In plain brown wrapper, of course.)

(P.S. Look for the Four Preps in concert on your campus.)
