Reversal Hoped For Budget Cut

By RON COWAN

A $1,000,000 cut in the higher education budget for faculty salaries may be reversed in the legislature this week if opponents of the move are successful in returning the budget to committee for reconsideration.

Chancellor Roy Lieuallen, several legislators and other representatives of higher education are planning to have a motion made in the House today to return the appropriations bill to the Ways and Means Committee which made the cut.

THE COMMITTEE approved a budget of $2,900,000, $500,000 less than Governor Mark Hatfield recommended and another $500,000 less than the State Board of Higher Education would like to see approved as a minimum amount.

Chancellor Lieuallen told the Emerald Monday that Governor Hatfield gave a "vigorous endorsement" to the plan for reinstating the $1,000,000, even though this will be more than he has recommended.

Hatfield justified this about-face on the basis of the increase in the student-teacher ratio which was made after he gave his budget recommendations. Consequently, "we have the full support of the governor," said Lieuallen.

THE CHANCELLOR described the possible House vote on this issue as "crucial for higher education. We've had quite a bit of favorable reaction to our side," said Lieuallen, although it is still difficult to tell what action will be taken.

University President Arthur S. Flemming stated Monday that "I believe that it is imperative for the House of Representatives to instruct the Ways and Means Committee to add a million dollars for salary improvements if the University and other institutions in the state system are to be put in a position where they can retain and continue to attract outstanding teachers for their faculties."

ASUO PRESIDENT Phil Sherburne has called the move "the latest swing at higher education in the State of Oregon."

"They have begun a trend of putting a higher education beyond the means of many deserving students, and now the committee wants to comparatively re-

Student Works Slated Tonight

First performance of "Sonata Breve" by Frederick H. Candalaria, assistant professor of English, will be featured on a program of contemporary music in the Music School auditorium at 8 p.m. today.

William Woods, assistant professor of music, will perform the composition.

Experimental works on the program include stereo tape compositions by Dennis Atkinson and Keith Taylor, both graduate students in composition.

Taylor will also perform his "Pieces for Prepared Piano," and Atkinson's "Movement for Two Ensembles" will be presented.

In Atkinson's composition an ensemble for strings and percussion will be under the direction of Pat Chaffin, graduate student from Eugene.

"Sonata for Violin and Piano" by David Young, sophomore at South Eugene High School, will be performed by Charles Hens, violinist and junior in music from Salem, with the composer at the piano.

David Farr will play "Suite for Organ" by Kristine Goplen.

"Three Pieces for Oboe and Piano" by Pate Chaffin will be performed by Sharon Sloan, oboe, and Homer Keller of the Music School faculty, piano.

Future Said Doubtful For Recreational Area

By DICK RICHARDSON

Bill Vertrees, chairman of the Student Development Fund drive, said Monday the chances that the goal of $20,000 for a recreational area would be reached were "practically nil."

ASUO President Phil Sherburne will ask the Senate Thursday to consider whether or not students who have signed over their breakage fee for a recreational area should be asked to leave their money in the Development Fund to continue the drive next year.

APPROXIMATELY 900 students have signed over their breakage fee to the recreational area and 75 students have signed over their money to the unrestricted development funds, said Jack Cross, assistant Student Union director. This represents about $10,000 of the $20,000 goal.

Vertrees said that exact figures on the amount of money that has been obtained in the drive would be released Wednesday.

Plans to continue work on the recreational area will depend on the Senate's action Thursday, Cross said.

ACCORDING to the original plan of the Student Development Fund drive, if the $20,000 is not received, the money will be returned to the students.

Vertrees said that if the goal is not received the student's money will be returned immediately. He said the cards will be returned to the students and they can get their money back or can rechannel it to other development fund areas.

The Senate will decide whether students should be asked to leave their money where it is and hold it for another recreational resort drive next year.

SHERBURNE said that University President Arthur S. Flemming has asked that this be brought before the Senate to assure that the established procedure of the drive would be followed.

Cross said that the 975 students who have signed over their breakage fees to the drive "should be some indication of the interest in the drive."

He said there are some faculty members on campus "who subscribe to the idea of establishing a recreational area." About 12 years ago, he said, the University had the opportunity to purchase Laurelwood golf course and some adjacent land for a recreational area, but that no action was taken at that time. "There are still some faculty members who remember this," he said.

THE PURPOSE of the drive is to obtain $20,000 with which to purchase a recreational resort, which will include facilities for overnight lodging, picnicking, archery, rifle practice and field events.

The camp would be available for individual students or groups. It will be "scheduled so individual students will almost always have access to it," said Vertrees.

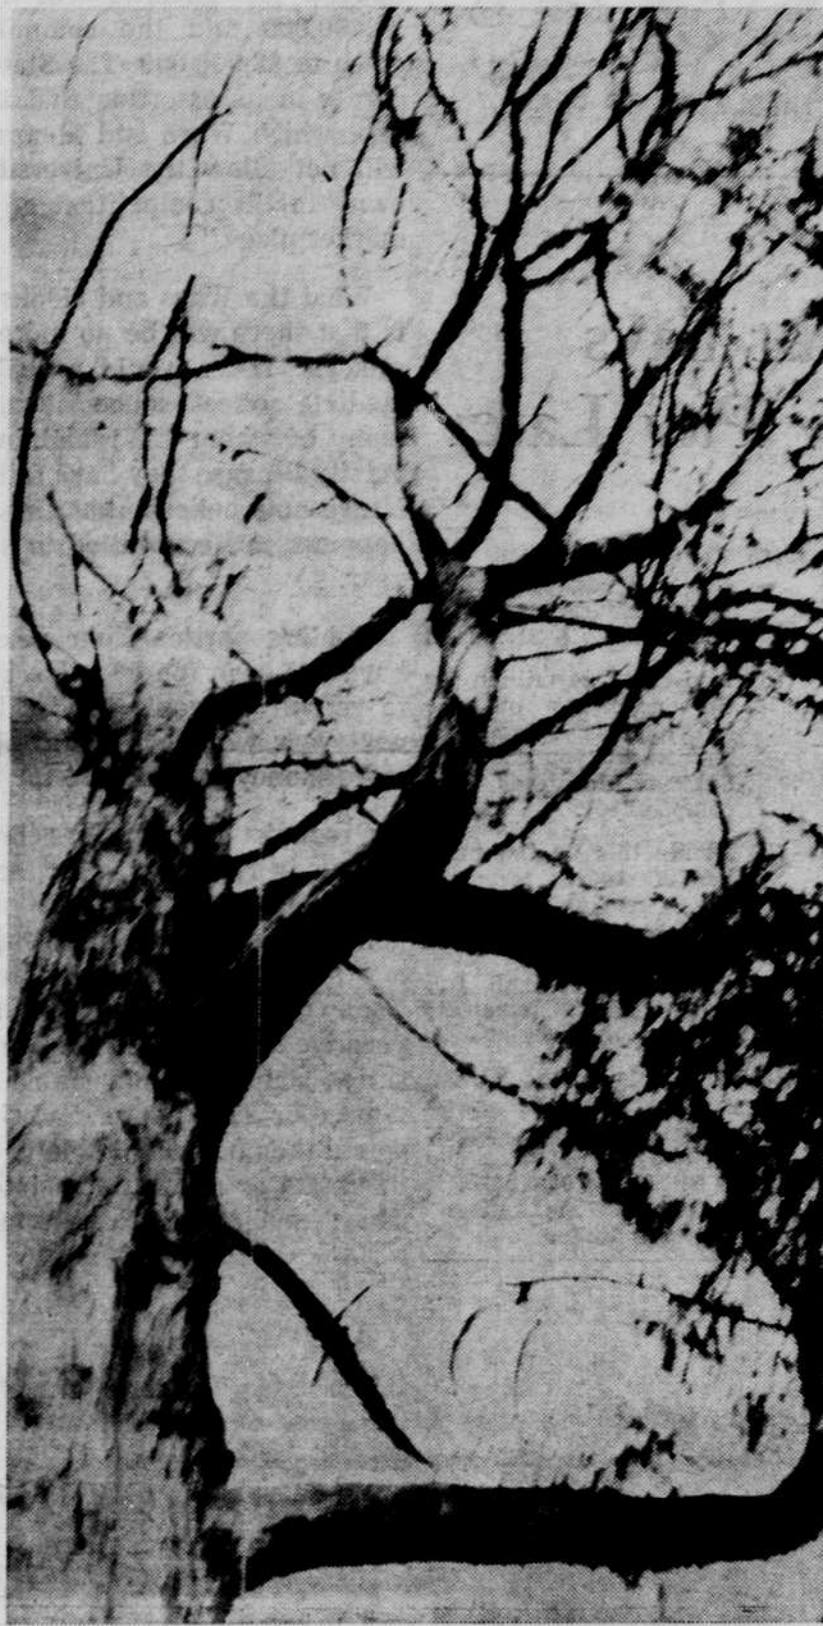

Cross said the major loss will be to the students if the goal is not reached and plans for the resort are continued. He said students, by giving money for the recreational area, will naturally have control in the operation of the resort.

He said students would lose some control in the resort if other groups donated money, since these other groups would also have some control in how the area was operated.

Future Teachers To Hear Bailey

Burton Bailey, Foreign Language Consultant with the State Department of Education in Salem, will talk today with students planning to teach foreign languages in Oregon next year.

The meeting is set for 4 p.m. in 221 Friendly. Bailey will speak briefly about the services offered by the State Department of Education and will be available to answer questions.

ALTHOUGH SPRINGTIME suggests rejuvenation, this battered tree on the old campus brings back memories of the Columbus Day storm last fall.

Two Join Race For NSA Posts

Two more students have entered the race for NSA delegate. Warren Wotton and Hank Courtney submitted petitions before the 5 p.m. deadline Monday.

There are now eight candidates for the five positions. Other candidates are Mike Gannon, Pam Pashkowski, Mike Ellmaker, Jerry Rust, Judy Scrivner and Howard Leibreich. The delegates will be selected in the double elections May 27 and 28.

THE SAME ballots will be cast on two succeeding days to give students a greater opportunity to vote.

The proposed constitutional revisions and the co-op representation petition will also appear on the ballot.

Bruce McKeel, ASUO vice-president, announced that he has tentatively planned to divide the constitutional revisions into three categories. Students will cast three votes to pass or not pass the proposed changes. The votes will deal with tenure of office, the recall clause, and the enabling clause.

THE TENURE portion of the ballot will deal with offices and the length of the term of election.

The revision calls for the addition of an off-campus women's representative, for enlarging the number of senators-at-large from nine to fifteen, and holding three general elections each year. The major election, including ASUO officers, class officers and living group officers, will still be held in the spring. Class officers will not hold Senate seats after next spring's election, if the measure is passed.

Within the tenure portion of the ballot a system for re-filling vacated Senate seats will also be approved or voted down. The plan calls for having vacated senate seats filled by a general election, rather than by the Senate itself as is now done.

THE RECALL portion of the ballot states that the electorate will have the power to recall a senator by submitting a petition bearing the signatures of at least 25 per cent of the electorate eligible to vote for the Senator in question. At present there is no recall provision in the constitution.

The enabling clause is necessary to put any constitutional

Shakespeare Lecture Set Today

Virgil K. Whitaker, executive chairman of the Department of English at Stanford University, will lecture on "Shakespeare's View of Man" at a 1 p.m. assembly today.

The lecture, which will be held in the SU ballroom, will be followed at 2 p.m. by a discussion period.

WHITAKER, Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar, has been associated with Stanford since his undergraduate days. He was graduated from Stanford and received his advanced degrees there.

A member of the editorial board of "The Shakespeare Quarterly," he is the author of a number of books, including "Shakespeare's Use of Learning."

During World War II he served as consultant with the Southwest Field Training Program of the Indian Service and later as Superintendent of Indian Education in the United Pueblos Agency, Department of the Interior.

AFTER THE war he returned to Stanford, where he has been a professor since 1950. He was a visiting scholar at the Folger Library in 1951 and a fellow at the Henry E. Huntington Library in 1955-56. He was a writer for the Commission on Rights, Liberties, and Responsibilities of the American Indian, 1959-60.

The Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar program was started in 1956 to enable more universities and colleges to have leading scholars participate in campus activities.
