

Adds $33 Million

UO Boosts Local Economy

The University provides a $33 million yearly boost to the economy of Eugene, J. Orville Lindstrom, University fiscal director, told the Kiwanis club Wednesday.

Lindstrom says that is the estimated amount spent by the University itself, students, faculty, and visitors who come to Eugene because of the University.

Each Student Worth $3,300

Staff and faculty payrolls alone amount to $11 million each year, Lindstrom said.

If the $33 million yearly impact on Eugene's economy is divided by the roughly 10,000 students, the economic value of each student to Eugene figures out to $3,300, Lindstrom noted.

The effect on the economy when enrollment increases by 1000 is equal to that of a new factory with a staff of 190 year-round workers.

Construction at the University last year totaled $4.5 million, which is 30 per cent of the city's total building permit valuation for the year, said Lindstrom.

According to Lindstrom, a yearly sum estimated at $4 million is brought into the Eugene community by campus conventions, athletic events and visits by parents.

Education Main Business

Lindstrom reminded the Kiwanians that the University's main business is "education" while he was pointing out the economic aspects of having the University located in Eugene.

"The University will have to raise tuition and curb enrollments in order to obtain the same level of education it now offers if tax revenues are cut by a "no" vote on the October 15 election," Lindstrom said.

Sales Tax Said Election Issue

SALEM (UPI)—State Representative Ross Morgan of Gresham charged today that the campaign to get a sales tax in Oregon is the real issue involved in the October 15th tax referendum election.

He voiced the opinion at a luncheon during the Democratic State Central Committee meeting at Salem.

He said "Some people want a sales tax so bad they are willing to sell the state down the river to get one."

Morgan, who was co-chairman of the Legislature's Ways and Means Committee, urged support of the tax measure. He warned that "A 'no' vote will set the whole state back."

William Shanahan will speak on "German Universities In Crisis" at 8 p.m. tonight for the Honors College discussion. Shanahan, professor of history, spent the past summer in Germany where he participated in an educational evaluation of German schools.

Greater Oregon Sponsors Week

This week Greater Oregon will sponsor New Student Activity Orientation Week.

An assembly will be held at 7:30 p.m. tonight to orient students to campus activities.

Donald DuShane, dean of students, will speak on the "Value of Student Activities," and Bruce McKeel, ASUO Vice-President, will talk about the freshmen elections and the petitioning procedures for offices.

Steve Kohl, chairman, said the purpose of this week's activities will be "to acquaint new students and freshmen with the extra-curricular activities available at the University and to impress upon these students the value of these activities in the total educational program of the University."

Several open houses will be held during the week. The Student Union will have an open house from 2-5 Tuesday; the Emerald from 2-5 Wednesday; the ASUO from 2-5 Thursday; and Greater Oregon from 2-5 Friday.

Professor Jean Frappier of the University of Paris and a guest speaker for the department of foreign languages will deliver an address at 4 p.m. today in the SU.

Frappier will speak on "Le jugement de dieu dans les romans francais de Tristan du XIIe siecle." He is one of the world's foremost medievalists and an authority on the Arthurian field.
