

Candidates Vie in ASUO, Class Races

Twenty-five students will be on the ASUO and class ballots Wednesday. The Emerald publishes here and on page 5 campaign statements of these candidates to enable voters to make wise decisions when selecting class and campus leaders.

Senator-at-Large

George Austin

The ASUO Senate offers an opportunity and a responsibility to those who feel student government is more than a pleasant-sounding phrase. During this academic year the Senate should urge a re-evaluation of our so-called "traditions." Traditions that have lost their meaning have lost their worth. The Senate should further urge a codification of procedural standards for the student courts of the various living organizations. Finally, the student body should be allowed to vote on the issue of compulsory athletic fees. If elected Senator-at-Large I would work toward the realization of these and other goals.

Barrie Wight

The ASUO Senate has adopted my measure to create two days of no classes prior to final examination week. The matter is now in the hands of the academic deans.

We should have some form of pre-registration and an evaluation of the present system of registration.

We need to have a more active student lobby group on the state level. Perhaps if the students had been behind the measure No. 1 with their time as well as with their money, the measure might have been passed.

There is a need for a foreign student reception center (an international house) to welcome the newcomers to the University Community.

Communists Coming

Communists are coming to America now in increased amounts, J. Edgar Hoover has pointed out. The main reason seems to be the lack of Dairy Queens in operation under the hammar and sickle.

Aren't you glad you live in a free country . . . where there are plenty of Dairy Queens?

Bob Benedict

As a candidate for Senator-at-Large, I feel the need for more progressive, active student; where the general opinion of the student body is heard, rather than the voice of a few. My basic platform rests on a desire to educate the student body towards an understanding of issues affecting us, and through this create opinion.

Most of the issues now in the spotlight have already been gone over many times. I do take a stand on these, but what about ideas that are more tangible, such as the possibility of pre-registration, creating adequate parking space, or cleaning up a campus eyesore, the cemetery. These things and more can be worked on now.

Bill Dames

1. A more academically oriented pre-registration week may be accomplished by having testing and some forms of registration at the beginning of the week. The later part of the week could be devoted to the social aspects of the University, with the possibility of extending orientation week to include rush and to exclude proceduralism.

2. Work for faculty approval of the teacher evaluation forms passed by the student Senate.

3. Equal student representation in all areas which directly affect students. The faculty is one example of a group that discusses topics which directly concern students, such as the discipline code and the use of compulsory fees, yet allows no student representatives at its meetings.

I would like to see that the inter-dorm council proposed at a recent Senate meeting be organized immediately. This council would increase communication and unity among the dorms, as well as act as a policy-making body and a minor court for the dorms. I would like to see the freshman orientation raised to an "Introduction to the University and World Affairs" rather than an "Introduction to College." Perhaps the N.S.A. could assist Greater Oregon with this project.

I would like to represent the women of the upper-class dorms in the Senate by introducing plans that will benefit them in every way possible.

I strongly support the establishment of a dorm council. This council consisting of a delegate from each dorm would meet regularly, offering an opportunity for your problems, ideas, and opinions to be expressed and discussed. We as responsible students can realistically support and evaluate the Discipline Code through this dorm council. The upper-class women's dorms can become a more cohesive, effective group, and more involved in campus issues and activities through direct communication with your dorm representative.

I urge each of you to vote this Wednesday, and I hope you as concerned voters will consider the candidate whom you can trust to represent you honestly.
