

Little Concert Series

Claremont Quartet Appearance Tonight

In 1954 a long-standing personal friendship resulted in the formation of a quartet, whose members have since toured all parts of the United States and Canada, Europe, Israel, Australia and New Zealand.

Tonight this group, the Claremont Quartet, will present a performance at the University as a part of the Little Concert Series.

The concert, which is sponsored by the Student Union Board, in conjunction with the Arts Program of the Association of American Colleges, will begin at 8 p.m. in the Music Auditorium. Those having season tickets will be seated in a reserved section at the front of the auditorium.

Tickets Still Available
General admission tickets for the single performance are also available at a cost of $2.50 for adults and $2 for students. Tickets may be obtained at the main desk in the SU or at the door.

The members of the quartet who will present their musical wares are Marc Gottlieb, Vladimir Weisman, Irving Klein, and Scott Nickrenz, the newest member of the quartet. The four, respectively, play first violin, second violin, cello, and viola.

In addition to their performances in many countries, they have appeared at many major colleges and universities, the Library of Congress and Inter-American Festival, and on broadcasts of an Adult Education Program. In addition, they have presented over 500 children's concerts all over the country.

All four of the members of the quartet have had a great deal of education and training in the musical field. Gottlieb graduated from the Juilliard School of Music and began his career as a violin soloist in concerts in New York City. Also he played with the Degan and the Baroque String Quartets and has composed several pieces including several piano pieces, a violin concerto, and a woodwind quintet.

Vladimir Weisman also made his solo debut in New York City. He has played with the Indianapolis and St. Louis Symphonies, and was awarded scholarships at several music institutions.

Irving Klein, the third founding member of the quartet, studied at the Cleveland Institute of Music and won several awards and scholarships for his ability at an early age. He is the holder of a BA degree from New York University and has played for the CBS Symphony.

The final member of the group, Scott Nickrenz, joined the quartet in the summer of 1962 after attending the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, Canada, and the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia. He also was a member of the Curtis Orchestra, and the original violist of the Lenox quartet.

Education . . .

lege system like Washington and California. We're not wealthy like them. We shouldn't try to keep up with the Joneses down there."

He said graduate facilities are all right in wealthy private institutions, but not in public ones.

Pearson listed two ways to save money in higher education without raising standards or tuition or impairing the quality of education:

- Faculty salary increases of $600,000 could be forfeited in the second year of the biennium.

- Faculty work loads can be increased. It is paradoxical, he said, that in the early grades, where students need personal attention most, class loads are heaviest; but at the college level, educators try to keep class loads as light as possible.

Rep. Veola Wilmot, (D-Eugene), and Richard Eymann (D-Marcola) said graduate facilities are necessary to attract the type of industry Oregon says it wants.

Budget Cut Plan Told
The Joint Ways and Means Committee agreed Tuesday on a plan to provide for cutting of the state general fund budget.

The Legislature would authorize Gov. Mark Hatfield to make the budget cuts he already has ordered. The percentage cuts for each agency would be outlined in the bill to be drafted.

Christian Science Workshop to Meet

A workshop for University students interested in Christian Science will be held at 6 p.m. today in the Student Union.

Conducting the workshop will be Robert D. Stranathan, field representative for the College Organization Division of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Mass. Stranathan also will meet individually with students.

The meeting is sponsored by the Christian Science Organization at the University. The Organization also holds weekly meetings at 6:30 p.m. Sundays in the Student Union. The meetings are open to all students and faculty.

Watson Resigns Conduct Group Chairman Post

Donald Watson, associate professor of finance, has submitted his resignation as chairman of the Faculty-Student Conduct Committee, probably effective at the end of this term.

The conduct committee is the major administrative body under the new Student Discipline Code.

A University spokesman said the resignation was due to Watson's work situation. He is leaving the University temporarily at the first of the year to work in South America under a Ford Foundation grant to the University.

The program is expected to require his absence for several months.

Watson, who is assistant director of the Bureau of Business Research, has also been replacing the bureau director who has been ill.

The resignation was submitted, said the spokesman, with the understanding that it would become effective at President Flemming's discretion. "Flemming indicated that there probably will be no change in chairmanship until the end of this term."

Visitor Parking Space Increased

Two changes have been made by the Campus Planning Committee in an effort to increase space in parking lots for visitors by reducing the room allotted to faculty and staff in both the Johnson Hall and Student Union lots.

Student parking is still restricted in both lots. The Johnson Hall lot is now restricted to visitors and designated individuals, and general staff parking is eliminated except on week-ends.

At the SU lot, visitors-only spaces have been provided along the south curb and staff-faculty spaces have been restricted to the North curb from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Keg Hunt Ball

The Keg Hunt Ball will be held from 8 to 10:30 tonight in the SU Ballroom. Music will be provided by the Checkmates. Admission will be free with a homecoming button. Homecoming buttons are also good for admission to the dance Friday at McArthur Court.

Infirmary

Infirmary nurses had a busy day Tuesday as they cared for their twelve charges: Sharon Berge, Gary Gallon, Sandra Chalton, Sheryl Cohee, Judith Daniels, Gerald Freeman, Linda Harper, Linda Hopper, Donald Mitchell, Lauren Ross, Susan Turnbull and Kathleen Walker.

Coffee Hour Set To Explain International Living Plan

Experiment in International Living program gives students the opportunity to learn about other cultures by living in homes in other countries, according to Tim Galli, campus Experiment director.

The campus experiment, organized under the International Education Center, will have a coffee hour at 3 p.m., today, in the Student Union, for students and faculty interested in the program. A representative from the experiment's west coast office will speak.

Participants Assigned in Groups
Galli, who spent a summer in England under the program, said that participants are assigned in groups of about ten going to the same country. Each lives for a month in a private home "not as a guest, but as another member of the family."

Afterwards, he usually makes an "informal trip" with members of the host family, and generally spends about a week in a major city of the country or somewhere en route to the point of embarkation for home.

Applications Available
Application forms will be available at the meeting or at the IEC office in the SU. There are also expense-paid opportunities for group leaders, age 25 to 45.

The experiment has been set up in 38 countries in Latin America, Africa, Western Europe, the Middle East and Asia. It is a non-profit organization devoted to "creating mutual respect, understanding, and friendship among the different people of the world."

Pay Own Expenses
Although the fee schedule is influenced by gifts and subsidies from interested individuals and agencies, participants pay most of their own expenses.

Galli said that others at the University who have participated in the program include Leanne Goss, who went to Norway; Sharon Mackan, to Japan, and Arthur Curtis, who has been both a participant and group leader.

He said the deadline for applications is usually March 1.

Litchman Slates Speech on Stadium

Art Litchman, University publicity director, will lead a discussion at noon today in the SU which will launch a new program, the "Noon Forum."

This meeting marks the beginning of a series of discussions on crucial campus issues. The topic of the first meeting will be "New Stadium Proposals."

Anyone wishing to participate is asked to either bring his lunch or buy it in the SU cafeteria. The discussion will take place while the participants are eating.

Meetings of the forum will continue every week at noon Wednesday.

FACTS ON COIN-OP DRY CLEANING

Many students are unaware of the substantial savings resulting from use of "coin-op" dry cleaning machines which are available close by the campus.

Each load costs only $1.50 and can be up to 8 pounds. A typical 8 pound load would be one car coat, five skirts and a half dozen sweaters; or a sport jacket, three pairs of slacks, two woolen shirts and two or three sweaters. These quantities will vary depending on weight of the individual garments. Most all colors can be mixed except it is better not to include black and white garments in the same load. Oftentimes it is advantageous for two or more students to go together to make up a load.

Garments come out substantially wrinkle free and ready to wear but some touch-up work with a steam iron will insure a first class job. Pleated skirts keep their pleats.

LOWELL'S EASTSIDE LAUNDROMAT, located just east of the campus at 1430 Orchard Street, has these coin-op dry cleaning machines and there is always an attendant to help.

LOWELL'S EASTSIDE LAUNDROMAT also has complete coin-op laundry facilities. These include 40 washing machines and 14 large dryers. Because of the large number of machines available, you'll never have to wait.
