

Communist Systems Topic of Workshops

The major factors of Marxism-Leninism will be among the topics under consideration in a 1964 Summer Session workshop, "Comparative Communist Systems and Ideology," for social studies teachers at the secondary level.

Under the direction of Joseph R. Fiszman, instructor of political science, the workshop will assist teachers who have courses or course units dealing with political systems which are officially based upon Communist theory and ideology.

Varying interpretations of Marxism-Leninism, exploration of political behavior in key Communist systems such as the USSR, Peoples Republic of China, and Cuba, and comparison between the organization and behavior of Communist and non-Communist systems and societies will be discussed by educators and representatives from government agencies and private organizations.

Lecturers Numerous

Among those who will lecture at the workshop from June 22 to July 17, will be Abraham Brumberg, executive editor of "Problems of Communism," (Press and Publication Service, United States Information); William Ebenstein, political scientist from the University of California at Santa Barbara; Ivo J. Lederer, history professor from Yale University; and Seymour Martin Lipset, sociologist from the University of California at Berkeley.

Educators and representatives from the RAND Corporation, the University of Washington, the University of California at Los Angeles, the Research Institute on Communist Strategy and Propaganda of the School of International Relations at University of California at Los Angeles, and Stanford University will also lecture.

Participants Sponsored

Only persons sponsored by local school districts and accepted by the Oregon State Department of Education will be eligible to participate in the workshop.

Elementary teachers will be accepted if secondary teacher registrations do not reach 100 by the May 15 deadline.

'Should Resist'

Referring to the general trend in higher education to increased tuition, Fleming said "public higher education should continue to resist the trend," which he described as "inconsistent with the philosophy of higher education."

The president said "the object should be to remove these financial obstacles." He suggested a three-way program of scholarships, loans and a work program.

SKIING IS GREAT!

and there's great skiing at

DRIVE OUT ALL-WEATHER HIGHWAY 58 to WILLAMETTE SKI AREA on top of the Emerald Empire

Director George Arnis, PNSIA Certified Ski Instructor, says:
"Why not drive up after your morning classes! You can still get in 3 full hours of skiing and be back in time for dinner. Better yet, come for the whole day. Remember, if you ski Willamette during the week, you can be sure that the crowds will be small."
