A. L. Rowse, Scholar To Speak March 6-7

The distinguished British historian and Shakespeare scholar, A. L. Rowse, will give the conference address on "The Problems of Shakespeare's Sonnets" at the Pacific Northwest Renaissance conference at the University Friday and Saturday.

Rowse, a Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford University, England, who is at present Senior Research Fellow at the Huntington Library, San Marino, Calif., is the greatest living authority of the history of the Elizabethan period.

Rowse's biography of Shakespeare, published in 1963, has created a sensation in this country and abroad. He has received wide notice in the press and has been the subject of a "profile" in the New Yorker and a sketch in the Saturday Review.

Author of 25 Books

He is the author of some 25 books on the history of the Elizabethan period. He has written and will publish during the current year, a book on Shakespeare's sonnets and one on Christopher Morley.

Meetings of the conference will be held in the Student Union, except for Rowse's talk, which will be in the University Theatre at 11 a.m. Saturday, and an illustrated lecture on "Michelangelo the Dramatist" by Lucile Golson of the University's School of Architecture and Allied Arts. The latter will be Friday at 1:15 p.m. in 106 Lawrence Hall.

Conference Significant

The 1964 Renaissance Conference honors not only the 400th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare but also the 400th anniversary of the death of Michelangelo.

An outgrowth of this year's conference will be a book, edited by Waldo McNeir and Thelma Greenfield, both of the University English department. "Pacific Coast Studies in Shakespeare," to be published by University of Oregon Books, will include some 30 essays contributed by scholars of West Coast, including British Columbia.

At least 20 memorial volumes will be published in this country and in Europe in connection with the Shakespeare quadricentennial. "Pacific Coast Studies in Shakespeare," a significant addition to modern Shakespeare criticism, will be the West Coast's contribution to the world-wide celebrations for the world's greatest dramatist.

Student Delegates Deny Membership

Britain was denied membership in the Common Market during a mock session of the European Economic Community Council of Ministers which climaxed the high school International Relations League conference at the University Friday and Saturday.

About 580 high school students from 70 Oregon schools attended the conference.

Delegates representing France vetoed Britain's application, while those from West Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Belgium, and Italy voted to include the United Kingdom. A unanimous vote is necessary for admission.

Conference sponsors were Oregon Education Association and the Institute of International Studies and Overseas Administration at the University.

Portland Paper Given Money, Publishes Again

PORTLAND (AP)—The Portland Daily Reporter, which missed publishing Monday because of financial difficulties, announced it will resume publication Tuesday.

Publisher Robert D. Webb said two Portland businessmen loaned the newspaper $25,000 each. That money, with more than $50,000 donated by the public, will enable the paper to operate, he said. Webb added that the businessmen asked to remain anonymous and declined to identify them.

Webb expressed the hope that the paper's difficulties were at an end. He said earlier $100,000 would be required to run the paper until June.

The publisher of the strike-born paper said a circulation drive now a month old would continue and that he expects subscribers to total 75,000 within two months. The last published report gave The Reporter 54,000.

Story Reprinted

"The Fish Camp Under the Snow," a short story by James Hall, professor of English, has been reprinted in the New Directions Anthology No. 18, a standard nationally recognized series devoted to outstanding contemporary literature.
