

For Distinguished Teaching

Ersted Award Nominees Sought

Students and faculty members are currently being asked to nominate an outstanding faculty member to receive the Ersted Award for distinguished teaching.

The $1,000 award is given each year to a faculty member who has demonstrated exceptional ability to induce students to reason rather than to memorize. The award is donated through the University Development fund by A. J. Ersted of Atherton, California.

Nominations must be submitted to Donald M. DuShane, Dean of Students, in Emerald hall before May 15. A brief statement of why a professor is being nominated should accompany the nomination.

Past recipients are not eligible

Student Freed Of Grade Count

In a four and one-half hour case, Kenneth Kortge, sophomore in architecture and allied arts, was acquitted in the Student Court Monday of a charge of falsifying a midterm grade.

Charles R. Wright, assistant professor of mathematics, charged his gradebook had been tampered with sometime between Feb. 6 and March 8. He said a grade of 19 had been erased and a crude attempt made to replace it with a 49 and that the letter grade had been changed from an F to a C.

Kortge denied knowledge of the grade falsification and said he knew nothing of the charge until Wright informed him of it.

A Eugene lawyer, Arthur Johnson, defended Kortge. Johnson had several persons testify as to Kortge's character.

Acquittal of the case was on the grounds of insufficient evidence, which was Johnson's original motion for dismissal of the case.

The case was the longest heard by the Student Court.

University Wins Bridge Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Bridge teams from the University of Oregon and Texas are co-champions of the 1964 National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament.

In the duplicate tournament Dale Forster and Jeff Taylor of Oregon were high on the east-west board with 89 par points.

The Texas pair had a perfect score of 100 points to win the title on the north-south boards.

Arrangement Made

Petitioners must fit the qualifications set by the Student Activities Committee for participating in extracurricular activities.

Fink, who was appointed winter term by the senate to replace Bruce McKeel who was unable to hold office, said a special arrangement has been worked out to allow him to run for office while fulfilling his official duties on the election.

Fink will handle certain technical aspects of the campaign while Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, will handle such matters as organizing polling and counting ballots. Barry Winters, senate parliamentarian, will convene the senate elections board to consider any violations of campaign procedures.

Originally Winters was to serve in the vice-president's normal role as chairman of the elections board, but he resigned due to other obligations, Fink said.

GOP Model Convention Preparation Activities Increase as Date Nears

By STEVE GREEN
Political Affairs Editor

Over four months of behind-the-scenes planning will come to a head this weekend at the GOP Model Convention, April 24-25.

Jim Jones, general chairman, and his steering committee have developed plans for the convention that will allow a maximum of student participation. It is patterned directly after the Republican Convention to be held in San Francisco this summer.

The goal of the mock convention activities is to give those students who are interested the chance to acquaint themselves with the happenings of a political convention. Although many feel that the endorsement of their particular candidate is the most important thing, the basic idea is that of a learning experience.

Candidates Backed

Delegates representing the respective states were to have researched the political situation in their particular state and arrived at some sort of a conclusion as to how that state is apt to vote in the coming election.

Some student organizations supporting the various candidates have been organized for months whereas others are still barely getting off the ground in this last week before the convention.

The "College Students for Rockefeller" under the leadership of Bill Pollock were the first to organize. Throughout the entire post-convention activities, they have had the best organization.

Goldwater Support

The campaign for Senator Bary Goldwater is headed up by Dave Williams. Williams has been able to get tremendous support in spite of a lack of cohesion in his organization.

Steve McLaughlin has been in charge of the Scranton drive, and the draft Lodge movement got underway a few weeks ago under the direction of Bob Ried. Senator Margaret Chase Smith has had very little support outside of the Maine delegation.

A movement to back former vice-president Richard Nixon was started last week by Lynn Fox and Karen Long.

On the opening day of the convention, April 24, delegates will have an opportunity to hear spokesman from two various viewpoints within the Republican Party. Sen. Goldwater will speak in McArthur Court the afternoon preceding the opening of the convention.

Later that evening, Rep. John V. Lindsay of New York, a liberal, will be the keynote speaker. Goldwater and Lindsay represent opposite extremes in the Republican party and should give the delegates a fairly clear picture of where they differ.
