In a time of dwindling enthusiasm for the old campus traditions, proponents of the annual Push-Cart Relays are trying to spark new life in the declining campus spirit for "just-for-the-fun-of-it" activities.

Entry deadline for the relays, sponsored by Delta Chi, is April 30. Proceeds will be given to Pearl Buck School for Retarded Children. The relays, authorized as an all-campus activity, will be May 16.

To Promote Spirit

Carl Finwall, director of the relays said he hopes a campus-wide enthusiasm for the relays will help "generate a new spirit on campus." The relays were started last year to "provide a day of fun for the entire campus, while at the same time performing a worthwhile service to the community by supporting Pearl Buck School," he said.

Highlight of the day's activities will be a parade with group entries, such as small floats, skits, or "marching units," which will be judged on originality and entertainment. Trophies will be awarded to the winners.

"This is to be a day of fun, not of work," Finwall emphasized. "We don't want groups to construct expensive floats, but to exercise their creativity to make an entry which will be amusing and entertaining to the spectators and enjoyable to the participants as well."

All Groups Eligible

All recognized campus organizations and living groups are eligible to enter in the relays. All groups entering the relays are required to enter a unit in the parade, but organizations not entering the relays may still enter the parade. Entry fee is $10.

Specifications for the carts have been designated by Delta Chi. All push-carts entered by male organizations and groups whose membership includes both men and women qualify for the "A" division. Push-carts entered by women's organizations qualify for "B" division events.

First-place winners of both divisions will compete in the championship event. Further information can be obtained by calling Finwall, at Ext. 1580.
