

Ducks Hope to Solve UW Puzzle

By JOE HOFFMANN
Assistant Sports Editor

Coach Len Casanova takes his undefeated Webfoots on the road this week for a Saturday afternoon encounter with the Washington Huskies in Seattle.

The Washington game—always one of the toughest on the Duck schedule—will doubtlessly be so this year, as the Huskies will be out to avenge their poor performances earlier this season.

Husky teams are notorious for starting win streaks against Oregon squads. Last year, after losing three straight, Washington won its next five, including a 26-19 victory over the Ducks at Multnomah Stadium.

This season, coach Jim Owens' team has looked good at times—but very poor at others.

The Huskies showed a strong offensive attack against the Baylor Bears, beating the Texans, 35-14.

Against the Iowa Hawkeyes, however, the Huskies looked quite the opposite. A weak pass defense and a fumbling offense proved the Huskies' downfall as they lost to the Iowans 28-18.

The Huskies squeaked by Stanford 6-0, last week.

The Washington offense is paced by Washback Junior Coffey, a man Oregon assistant coach John Robinson calls "one of the best fullbacks in the United States."

Born in Texas, the 6'1", 215 pound Coffey has everything a coach asks for in a fullback: power, size, speed, agility, balance, and blocking ability.

The big fullback has led the Husky offense through its first four games with a ground gaining average of 5.3 yards per carry.

The halfback spots are taken by two men whom Robinson describes as being good, accomplished runners.

Charlie Browning, a 6-0, 200 pound senior was switched to halfback after two seasons at fullback. He is currently the Huskies' third leading ground gainer, averaging just over four yards per carry.

At the other halfback position is Ron Medved, a 6-0, 200 pound junior from Tacoma, Washington. Rated only an average runner, Medved nevertheless trails only Coffey in rushing.

Not to be forgotten is explosive little Steve Bramwell, 5-8, 159 pound speedster who specializes in punt and kickoff returns.

The Husky attack is directed by quarterback Bill Douglas. The 6-1, 179 pound senior was injured in the opening moments of last year's Rose Bowl game, and has not played up to expectations so far this season.

The Washington defensive platoon is anchored by All-American Rick Redman. The 5-11, 219 pound linebacker also handles the punting chores for the Huskies.

The Washington game marks the opening Pacific Athletic Conference play for the Ducks. The contest will also be Oregon's first conference game since the break-up of the Pacific Coast Conference in 1958.

Over 55,000 fans are expected to be on hand at Washington Stadium when the Huskies and the Ducks tangle for the 58th renewal of this interstate series.

WHAT DO YOU DO when there's nobody open? Arizona quarterback Eddie Bricker finds there's no one to throw to and tries to elude the Oregon defense. He's doomed to failure as Oregon tackle Jerry Lee comes up from behind and guard Gary Davis comes in from the front. This was in the late stages of the game after Oregon had already wrapped up its 21-0 victory and the second units of both squads squared off. The Webfoot under that pile of Wildcats is guard Jack Clark.

Ducks Make Water Polo Start Tonight What's Happening

Oregon will take its first venture in the sport of water polo tonight when it hosts Oregon State for a match. Action will get under way at 8 o'clock at Leighton Pool. No admission will be charged.

Duck swimming coach Don Van Rossen said that the team will be competing as a club in that it does not have the financial backing of the Athletic Department.

Oregon, OSU, Washington and WSU will make up the Northern Division Conference, the tournament for which will be held November 14 in Corvallis. A return match with the Beavers has also been slated for November 20.

Starting tonight against Oregon

State will be Al Harrison, goalie; Corby Coutts and Bob Brockhouse, forwards; Ed Tarbell, center forward; Dave MacKenzie, center back; and Wes Metlick and Monty Holding, guards.

Moro Finishes 16th

Oregon's Gerry Moro, competing for the Canadian track team, finished 16th in the Olympic decathlon with 6,716.

That's well below his best of 7,030 set in Canada earlier this year. There were 18 competitors in the field.
