Red China Threatens

TOKYO (UPI)—The Red Chinese have strongly condemned what they termed "U. S. imperialism" for allegedly ordering South Korea to take part in the war in Viet Nam. The Chinese said they might intervene if "U. S. imperialism continues to prosecute its scheme for expanding its aggressive war in South Viet Nam."

Saigon Called 'Stable'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States says the situation in Saigon now appears stable enough to warrant resuming talks about increasing U.S. aid to the anti-communist war. The negotiations with South Vietnamese leaders broke off after a partial coup by army generals who ousted the civilian high national council.

VA to Close Hospitals

Johnson 'Distressed'

(WASHINGTON)—President Johnson says it always distresses him to read reports about the alleged resignation of Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon. Johnson told a group of business executives at the White House Tuesday: "I hope I never get that letter." Then he turned to Dillon, and said: "I hope you never learn to write."

Socialists . . .

"There are no Soviet soldiers in Viet Nam; there are no Chinese soldiers in Viet Nam; the only foreign soldiers in Viet Nam are United States soldiers," concluded the policy statement.

Owen D. Edwards, University history professor and faculty advisor to the socialist group, spoke briefly to the club.

Assuring the group that they have a great deal of support from within the University community, Edwards said that many faculty members are enthusiastic about the group's formation.

Edwards finished by saying that this club's activities would serve a purpose of "arousing students from their torpor and apathy" concerning many world and national problems.

In a statement of the purpose of the socialist club, Susan Hendershott, club secretary, said that "Too often, individual students experience a sense of futility and alienation in relation to events, political and otherwise, in the "world outside."

"We feel that students can and should be encouraged to make significant contributions to their political environment. Dialectic and demonstrational forms of action serve as a beginning in the attempt to tear down this wall of isolation," she concluded.

A general meeting of Students for Socialist Action will be held at 7 p.m. on January 19, so that a joint statement of policy can be drafted with other University groups, with regard to the planned demonstrations.

Unique 'No Classes' Studies Encourage Individual Efforts

(CPS-CUP)—The possibility of completing an entire undergraduate career—from registration to bachelor's degree—without ever attending classes will be offered 75 U. S. college freshmen next September.

The experiment—underwritten by a $325,000 grant from the Ford Foundation—will be launched at three liberal arts colleges: Allegheny, (Pa.), Colorado College, and Lake Forest (Ill.).

A national selection committee will pick 24 students from the freshman class at each college for the program. All will be talented students with accelerated high school preparation.

The chosen undergraduates will then pursue their first degrees through faculty-guided independent study, free of usually required courses, class attendance, grades and credits.

Each student will have, however, a faculty advisor in the role of preceptor, critic, and guide. Each will also have special access to visiting scholars, lecturers, and artists.

The unique departure is intended to allow academic freedom of movement for able undergraduates comparable to that permitted talented students in U.S. secondary schools, a foundation vice-president, Clarence H. Fause, explained.

"Secondary school programs that permit talented students to advance at their own pace and assume intellectual initiative are now part and parcel of better school systems throughout the country," he said. "But, too often undergraduates at universities are prevented from making the most of their talents by the rigidities of traditional curricula and course requirements."

At the end of the school year, the 5 students will be examined by committees of outside educators on their basic liberal education at that stage. Similar committees will examine them on their major fields at the end of four years.

The foundation granted each of the three colleges $75,000 for the salaries of faculty members released from other duties for the program.

All three colleges are coeducational institutions with enrollments under 1,500 and have previously made a number of innovations in liberal arts curriculum.
