

Response 'Good' To CARE Drive

Officials of the recently formed campus chapter of CARE said Wednesday that response to their current fund drive has been generally good, but that they were surprised and annoyed by the reactions of some people.

Mrs. Lee Feldman, chapter vice-chairman, and Chloe Haynes, secretary, told the Emerald that the response from the faculty has been "much more than we expected," but that they were bothered by the apathy of many students toward the cause.

The group has sponsored a fund-raising table on the Student Union patio for the past five days. Students may contribute any amount, and may specify how the money is to be used.

Care Will Send Food

The CARE goal is $100, which would send one ton of food to other countries, according to Mrs. Feldman. So far they have collected $73, and expect to get the rest by Friday.

Mrs. Feldman, whose husband, Lee, is campus CARE president, said, "We were amazed that the mothers were so apathetic when we had our table last weekend. Many of them were curt to us."

Miss Haynes said students have been heckling the persons at the table.

"The most annoying question is 'How do I get on the list for a package,'" she said.

Membership Is Increasing

Mrs. Feldman said she is encouraged by the increasing interest in membership in the group. Any student may join, she said, by paying a $2 fee.

CARE is planning to have several speakers at its future meetings, including some from foreign countries.

Dwight Wallace, assistant professor of anthropology, is advisor to the group of about 25 active members.

The CARE drive will continue today and Friday at the SU.

Marx to Discuss 'Garden, Ecology'

Roberto Burle Marx, landscape architect and painter from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, will give a public lecture on "The Garden and Ecology," today at 8 p.m. in Room 123 Science.

He will be the guest of the School of Architecture and Allied Arts.

First educated in music, Marx decided to become a painter during a study trip to Germany in 1928.

Upon his return to Rio he enrolled at the Academy of Fine Arts and began to grow and study plants in his own garden.

In 1934 he became the director of public parks for the city of Recife and four years later received the gold medal for painting from the Brazilian Academy of Fine Arts. A year later he first attracted international notice with his designs for the roof and plaza gardens of the Ministry of Education.

Coffee Hour Today Features Viet Nam

"The Other Viet Nam" will be the topic of the International Coffee Hour discussion at 4 p.m. today in Gerlinger Hall. It will be a brief description of the Vietnamese culture and way of life.

One of the principal speakers will be Gary Smith, graduate in economics, who spent two years in Viet Nam with the United States Military Advisory Group. Also speaking will be Forrest Gerdes, graduate in sociology, who spent time teaching in Viet Nam.

To provide color and information of general interest for the benefit of those interested in the role of the U.S. in Southeast Asia will be the main purpose of the program.

Slides showing the many facets of Viet Nam will be shown. Two Vietnamese students and one professor will also enter in the discussion.

Ballinger to Lecture At Southern Illinois

Thomas O. Ballinger, associate professor of art at the University, has been invited to present two lectures at Southern Illinois University on May 14 and 15.

He will be speaking in conjunction with a Peace Corps Training Program for Nepal. Ballinger was director of the University Peace Corps Training program during the summer of 1964. Topics of Ballinger's lectures will be Nepalese art, architecture, and music.
