

FUN ON THE MILLRACE

That winding stream that you will see across Franklin Boulevard, running past the Physical Plant, under the roadway and along the row of Greek houses on E. 11th Ave. is known as the Millrace, and it's part of a long tradition at the University.

The busiest time at the Millrace is in May, when the campus living organizations build colorful floats for the annual Canoe Fete, part of the Junior Weekend activities. Each year thousands of persons view the unique spectacle.

But other activities also take place on the Millrace in the spring. Some coeds like to try canoeing; others are caught up in the spirit of things as they partake of another time-honored tradition, appropriately known as "Millracing."
