

Pitt Team Finds '65 Ducks Difficult

It's pronounced "trouble," but it's spelled "T-R-O-V-A-T-O," and it turned out to be one of the reasons for Oregon's second straight win in as many years over the University of Pittsburgh Saturday in Pittsburgh.

Trovato, one of a number of quarterbacks for Len Casanova's Oregon varsity football crew, made trouble for Pittsburgh and led the Ducks to two third-period touchdown drives for a come-from-behind 17-15 victory.

The Ducks dumped the Panthers in 1964 by a 23-14 score in Portland's Multnomah Stadium.

But it wasn't all quarterbacking for Oregon's successful squad in their 1965 grid debut as a couple of key pass interceptions late in the fourth quarter, plus a tenacious defense, stalled Pittsburgh drives throughout the afternoon.

Heat and humidity also played a hand in the contest as the temperature soared to the high 90's and the humidity reached 85 per cent.

Pitt Moves Ahead, 7-3

A 36-yd. field goal by Len Scholl put the Ducks into a 3-0 lead in the second quarter, but Pitt moved ahead 7-3 just before halftime on Bob Dyer's one-yard plunge and Frank Clark's PAT kick.

Then Trovato made his second entrance of the day, his first attempt turning into a pass interception for Pittsburgh, and made the Oregon offense move on drives of 72 and 87 yards.

Late in the game, after the Panthers had tallied their second touchdown on a nine-yard pass play from Dyer to end Mitch Zalnasky and scored a two-point conversion, this time from Dyer to halfback Eric Crabtree, Duck defensive backs pulled in two missed Pitt aeriels to halt the Panther try for a win, either by a TD or field goal.

Jim Smith and Scott Cress, both sophomores, came up with the passes to stall the drives. Pittsburgh, resting on the Duck seven yard line, saw a Dyer pass fall into the arms of Smith in the end zone.

And Cress hauled in quarterback Kenny Lucas' toss on the Panther 48 with a minute and a half remaining in the contest.

Defense Stops Pitt

The Duck defense stopped Pitt twice close to scoring territory early in the game. The first instance the Panthers moved to the Oregon 27-yd. line and, in the second, to the 15. But both times the Ducks held up to the fourth down and both times Pittsburgh settled for the field goal—missing in the two attempts.

Starting quarterback Mike Brundage engineered the Oregon attack in the first half and, in the second quarter, moved the Ducks to the 23-yd. line.

He hit on two passes to end Steve Bunker, and another to end Ray Palm, before the Pitt defense tightened. From there Scholl booted his field goal and gave the Ducks a brief lead.

But Pittsburgh scored, putting the Ducks behind. Then Casanova unvieled Trovato again at the start of the second half and quickly used his passing arm and the legs of his backfield to reach the Pitt goal.

Cress Scores TD

Fullback Dick Winn and halfback Bill O'Toole took the ball from the backfield from Trovato's hand and Palm and again O'Toole Trovato's arm to set up the score. Trovato's arm to set up the score.

The final pass was an eight-yarder to Cress that scored the go-ahead touchdown.

Pittsburgh punted and again the Ducks tallied and boosted their lead to 17-7. Two passes accounted for 57 yards of the drive, a 27-yd. throw to halfback Denny Keller and a 28-yd. toss to Cress.

That pass placed the ball on the six and from there, Cress took a pitch from his quarterback and scored the final Duck six-pointer.

Scholl kicked both extra points, accounting for five of the Duck's 17 points.

Oregon and Pitt both gained 16 first downs during the contest. Rushing and passing yardage also points out the closeness of the game as Oregon picked up 158 yards rushing, compared to Pitt's 145. Pitt had the edge in the passing department, 238 yards to Oregon's 233.

Jogging Tests Due to Resume

A second Eugene jogging program to test the reactions of men over 35 to mild exercise will begin this month.

Sponsoring the program will be Bill Bowerman, University track coach who introduced the jogging programs to Eugene, and Dr. T. A. Kerns and Dr. W. E. Harris, Eugene physicians.

The first "jogging-for-health" program for men over 30 was held in Eugene earlier this year for a three-month period, with 90 men completing the course, including about a dozen who had previously suffered heart seizures.

A pilot study for a limited number of women is being considered for the fall and winter and will probably started in the middle of October, with the exact date to be announced later. For those who need to lose weight, the program will be combined with a reducing program under the direction of Dr. Kerns.

Applications to enter the program for men should be made at the Eugene Chamber of Commerce in the lobby of the Eugene Hotel. A charge of $9.50 for each participant will be made, and checks should be made out to the Medical Research Fund of Sacred Heart General hospital.

Jogging will begin Monday and continue on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for about three months. The participants will be divided into groups, each one under the direction of one of the University's varsity track team. Bowerman will oversee all the groups and visit them in rotation.
