

No Place to Park? Then Why the Empty Lots?

The most common student complaint here is that "There's no place to park."

So this year the University opened up some new parking spaces for students out by Bean Hall. But it looks like students don't like to park out there and walk all the way into the campus.

At least that's what these pictures, taken at the same time on a Wednesday afternoon, seem to indicate. The picture above is of the lot West of Prince Lucien Campbell Hall. It's full. The bottom two pictures are of the parking lot out by Bean. They're far from full.

Moral: try the Bean lot next time you can't find a place anywhere else.
