

Wrestlers Host OCE, PSC Vikings

If last weekend's road trip for the Oregon wrestling squad was any indication of things to come, then things just might be looking up for the Ducks.

The Webfoot squad hosts Oregon College of Education Friday night and Portland State Saturday night in McArthur Court after having increased its dual meet record to 3-2 with two wins during the journey to eastern Oregon and Washington.

"Things are starting to shape up real well," said varsity head coach Art Keith Thursday. "I think that road trip helped. We've worked on takedowns and now we're getting some response."

Oregon stopped Washington State and Eastern Oregon College on the road and the work on the takedowns was probably one of the top reasons for the wins.

"The boys are getting confident in their ability to get the takedown and are shooting for them," Keith added. He used 123-pound Grant Henjyoji as an example: "Henjyoji shot twice in the first ten seconds of his match with John Kruesi of Eastern Oregon and got the takedown on the second one."

"Exceptionally Tough"

And takedowns, along with any other technique of scoring that can be gained, are going to be needed this weekend—more so Saturday night when the Ducks take on the Vikings of Portland State.

"Portland State's exceptionally tough," said Keith. "They're tough in the light weights; in fact, they're strong all the way up and down."

Rick Sanders is one of the reasons. Sanders, a three-time Oregon high school state champion, nabbed an NAIA championship for the Viks last year and is back to give strength to the Portland State light weights.

But Keith can counter with a couple of defending champions himself—Doug Robertson at 137 pounds and Bob Mitchell at 167, both AAWU returning champs.

"Real Strong"

"If we can get three of those first five matches, we'll be in real good shape," continued Keith. "But we've got to do it at the beginning. They're going to hit us real strong."

Keith viewed the OCE-EOC match last weekend and was "impressed with OCE's desire. They were outclassed by Eastern Oregon, but they carried the fight to them."

According to Keith, OCE's Lamont Simons, a 137-pounder from Lebanon, is a real good prospect. "He pinned the Eastern Oregon kid in about 30 seconds."

The Oregon squad will consist mainly of Keith's starting lineup from the previous two weeks — Henjyoji at 123, Curt Scott at 130, Robertson at 137, Steffen Criner at 145, Craig Caster at 152, John Malpass at 160, Mitchell at 167, Doug Wilkinson at 177 and OREGON HOOP coach Steve Belko will throw Jim Barnett, along with the rest of the Duck squad, against Oregon State this weekend in a pair of non-conference encounters. Barnett, who has a 20.5 shooting average in four PAC games, will lead the Duck attack Friday in Corvallis at 8 p.m. and Saturday in McArthur Court at 2:30 p.m. Saturday's contest will be a regionally televised game.
