

Poverty Confab Starts Today

University President Arthur S. Flemming opens the ASUO-sponsored Poverty Conference at 8:45 a.m. today in the Student Union Ballroom.

Arthur Pearl, University education professor, will be the first conference speaker to give his views on possible solutions to the problem presented by poverty in the United States.

Other speakers will be Robert Lampman, 1:30 p.m. today; Saul Alinsky, 7:30 p.m. today; and Robert Theobald, 9 a.m. Friday. The four speakers will debate on the merits of their individual solutions Friday at 1 p.m.

Pearl was educated at the University of California at Berkeley. After that he was the research director on alcoholism for the California Department of Public Health.

Directed Research

He also directed research on narcotics for California Gov. Pat Brown. Pearl then became deputy director of the New York State Committee for Youth.

Before coming to the University, the education professor was associate director of Howard University's Center for Youth and Community Studies in Washington, D.C.

Mental Health for the Poor and New Careers for the Poor are recent books of which Pearl is the co-author; he has also had numerous articles on narcotics, delinquency and school dropouts.

"New Careers as a Solution to Poverty" will be the topic of his speech.

Lampman received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin, where he has been a faculty member since 1958. From 1948 to 1958, Lampman was on the faculty of the University of Washington.

His speech today, "An Economist Looks at Poverty," is expected to emphasize the advantages of the extension of unemployment benefits and a "negative income tax," which would, in effect, subsidize the incomes of poor people.

Alinsky is called the nation's best-known organizer for community action and has succeeded in stirring various communities into action on a variety of subjects.

"Inciting municipal jitters is, in a sense, Alinsky's trade," said an article which appeared in Harper's Magazine in July, 1965, referring to Alinsky.

This sociologist did both his graduate and undergraduate work at the University of Chicago. Since 1939, he has been the executive director of the Industrial Areas Foundation.

Books Published

"Reveille for Radicals" and a biography of John L. Lewis are two of his many publications.

Theobald is a British socio-economist who lives in New York and spends most of his time consulting, speaking, teaching and writing.

"The Guaranteed Income: Next Step in Socioeconomic Evolution" is the title of his latest book; he has also written several others.

The conference will be free to all University students, faculty and staff, but will cost the public $2.50 for registration. Over 130 have already registered for the event.

Special luncheons are planned for the speakers, tickets for which will be sold at the conference.

All proceedings of the conference will be published, and copies may be ordered at $1 per copy at the registration desk.

Students Face Draft Re-appraisal Soon

PORTLAND (AP) — Oregon students who now have 2-S draft deferments are going to have to move swiftly to prove that they are qualified to keep them.

Within a few days, cards will be mailed to each of the nearly 22,000 men on the state's student deferment list. The students will take them to the college registrars, who are to fill in on each the number of hours of classes being attended, grade point average for the last term and grade point average for all college work.

The school must then mail the card back to his draft board within two weeks of the time he received it. If he does not, he will be classified 1-A, subject to immediate induction.

This was reported Wednesday by Sprague Carter, Oregon Selective Service director, who said, "We have run out of single men between the ages of 19 and 26. We don't have a student problem; we have a manpower problem."

The student deferment group is the largest pool of available manpower, Carter continued, and has to be tapped.

Students who show their cards from the registrar that they are taking 12 hours or more of work and getting "C" grades or better will be eligible for continued deferment under present standards.

Those who do not will be subject to reclassification and, in all likelihood, will be drafted by the end of the year if the calls continue at their present rate, Carter said.

When asked if colleges had been consulted on feasibility of handling the 22,000 cards in time for students to return them within two weeks, Carter replied, "That is the responsibility of the institutions."

Gap Closing in Drive For Stadium Monies

By LARRY LANGE
Assistant News Editor

The financial machinery of the University's new north bank football stadium clicked another notch Wednesday when private contributions for the new structure reached two-thirds of the necessary total.

Announcement of the gain was made by Hale Thompson of the Speaker Bureau of the Civic Stadium Fund Committee in a promotion speech to the Eugene Kiwanis Club Wednesday noon.

As of Wednesday, contributions totaled $660,000, according to Lynn McReady, chairman of the fund-raising campaign. McReady said he was "quite pleased" with the movement of the drive, and that he was sure the total would be obtained soon.

The goal in the private fund campaign is $1 million.

Total projected cost of the stadium is $2.25 million. $800,000 is obtainable from University Athletic Department reserves, and University President Arthur S. Flemming is confident that he can raise the remaining $425,000 from "special gifts and loans," once the other money is in hand.

Plans for the stadium include seating for 45,000. Two sideline banks will hold 18,000 each, and end zone seats with a 15,000-seat potential will be added as needed.

Hayward Field, the University's present stadium, will take 21,500.

The new structure will be erected on an 89-acre site owned by the University in the North Bank Park area, directly across the Willamette River from the campus.

Target date for opening of the new stadium is football season of 1967.

Skidmore, Owens, and Merrill, Portland architectural firm, has been working on preliminary drawings for the building for more than two months.

A proposal has been made to bridge the Willamette River from an extension of either Agate or Villard street to the new stadium area. According to Jess Hill, Lane County Commissioner, engineers are now at work on this idea, awaiting final word on the exact location of the new structure.

Access roads to the stadium will run from Interstate 105. Financing of the road construction by the state, by the county, or through a state-county co-operative effort is uncertain at this time.

Board to Okay Future Requests

The Student Union Board decided in its meeting Wednesday that until the Student Activities Committee formulates a clear-cut policy, the Board will approve all requests for groups to sponsor activities in the SU.

"We'll just rubber-stamp requests until a new policy is made," SU Board chairman Dick Lawrence said. "However, we will not co-sponsor any activities until Student Activities make a decision."

Until now, the Board has had to okay requests from groups wishing to charge admission to their activities held in the SU. In some cases, the Board would co-sponsor activities, putting them in a position to make value judgments. The temporary policy would eliminate this problem.

Student Activities has been working to formulate a policy for approximately five months, Lawrence said.

While the Board adopted the recommendation, some changes in wording will be made before it takes effect.

In other business, the Board:

- approved a Young Democrats request for use of the SU to show the film, "A Thousand Days," a biography of John F. Kennedy during his term of office, on Feb. 17. A 25-cent admission price will be charged.

- discussed a committee report involving the possible change of the World Affairs Briefing Center to the TV room, and vice-versa. This would result in improved facilities for both.

- approved a special attraction for Dads' Day, Feb. 19. A program, "Evolution of the Blues," involving three live jazz groups, will be presented.

- okayed jazzman Les McCann's show for Feb. 14.

Roth Won't Run For New Post

ASUO Senate Graduate Student Representative Rod Roth has withdrawn his petition for senator-at-large in the winter term elections.

"There is no sense in running now," Roth said, "since I can't demonstrate the holes in the (ASUO) Constitution."

Roth originally ran for the second Senate seat to point up an inequity in the Constitution which does not prohibit someone from holding two offices. But the ASUO Constitutional Committee, the group which interprets the Constitution, ruled that the two positions are incompatible. Therefore, Roth would have to resign his graduate representative position to run for senator-at-large.

The Committee's decision on Roth applied only to those two offices: graduate rep and senator-at-large.

Sparky Petre was inadvertently left off the list of candidates for ASUO senator-at-large published in Wednesday's Emerald.

YAF to Sponsor Infiltrator's Talk

Young Americans for Freedom will hear a speech at 8 p.m. today by Karl Prussian, a former FBI agent who posed as a member of the American Communist Party and infiltrated the organization.

"The Free Speech Movement, Communist Party U.S.A., and how Communists Recruit Students on University Campuses" will be the topic of his speech.

Prussian was an FBI agent for 13 years and attended meetings of the Communist Party in California during that time.

No More Police Reports? Conduct Committee Debates

By CLIFF SANDERLIN
Staff Writer

The Conduct Committee heard a motion Wednesday from a student member, Bob Carl, that the Committee recommend to President Flemming that the Office of Student Affairs no longer should receive copies of police reports on students who have been arrested.

Presently police reports are sent to Associate Dean of Students Francis B. Nickerson, who told the Committee that he uses the reports only for counseling purposes.

Carl charged that the police records are used for more than counseling purposes, citing a recent case in which one of ASUO President Steve Goldschmidt's committee nominations was held up by the University President's office because the student has three minor infractions on his police record. The records dated back three years.

Goldschmidt, who outlined the case at the Committee meeting, questioned how such information could come from the Office of Student Affairs if the records are used only for counseling purposes.

According to Nickerson, he destroys the records as soon as he has spoken to the student.

Nickerson disagreed with Carl's motion, claiming that the counseling information derived from the police records help "about one in seven or eight students" who get into trouble with the law.

Nickerson said he knew there had been a "leak" of the information on police records in the past, and that he was aware of who in the Office of Student Affairs had been responsible. He did not name the person but said he was sure the "leak" had been stopped.

A vote on the motion was postponed by Committee Chairman Wendell Basye until the Friday meeting.

In other business, the Committee passed amendments:

- Giving the ASUO president's office the first responsibility, in Section II. B.2, recommending members to the minor courts.

- Providing for appointment of student prosecutor by the Associate Dean of Students, "subject to the approval of the Student Conduct Committee;"

- Providing, in section II. B.4, an advisor to the minor courts subject to approval of the Conduct Committee, who will also assist the ASUO President in recruiting and nominating to the President of the University candidates for membership in the minor courts.

This amendment also outlined the specific duties of advisor to minor courts, which include "organizing the courts," "receiving all cases from the Associate Dean of Students . . ." attending court hearings where he would serve as advisor, and reporting results of hearings, "pursuant to section I. G.2."

Chairman Basye, in discussing the proposal to give the responsibility in recommending members to minor court to the ASUO President, said, "I believe we should attempt to bring into play the office of the ASUO President."

"Since he (Goldschmidt) already makes nominations to the
