

Southern College Asks For Student Exchange

The University has taken the first step toward a co-operative exchange program with a Negro college in the South.

T. W. Cole, president of Wiley College, in Marshall, Texas, has asked the University to assist him in securing qualified graduate students or junior faculty members who might wish to apply for national teaching fellowships and serve as undergraduate instructors at his school during the 1966-67 academic year.

The fellowships carry a stipend of $6,500 per academic year, plus $400 per dependent. The program is being financed and authorized under Title III of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Cole has asked primarily for doctoral candidates or persons employed at the instructor level, although he will also consider "other mature graduate students able to handle undergraduate instruction."

He is asking for fellows in mathematics, English, American history, business, sociology, physics, biology, chemistry, and elementary education.

Fellows will serve from Sept. 1 to June 1, 1967. They may renew the fellowship for a second year at that time.

Forms are available at the University Office of Federal Government Relations in room 231 Hendricks Hall. The forms must be submitted to the U.S. Office of Education by April 15. All interested candidates are asked to notify the Office of Federal Government Relations by Friday.

Wiley College is located in inland Texas. It has an enrollment of about 600 students, mainly Negro. It is an accredited, degree-granting four-year institution.

This is the first step toward the establishment of a more permanent exchange program which would include exchanging undergraduate students.

Some Wiley College faculty are also expected to be sent to the University for training.

The University may also set up exchanges by department with other schools.

San Francisco Troupe's Show Called 'Sick, Sick, Sick'

A minstrel show that deals with racial issues is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday in the Student Union Ballroom.

Co-sponsored by the SU Board and the University chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society, "A Minstrel Show or: Civil Rights in a Cracker Barrel" will be performed by the San Francisco Mime Troupe. According to R. G. Davis, the show's co-author and director, the show has been performed before about 40,000 persons.

At St. Martin's College in Lacey, Wash., nearly half the 200 spectators had already left the theatre when the curtains closed at intermission at a performance Sunday evening. St. Martin's is a Roman Catholic institution.

According to Associated Press reports, Mike Waske, student body president at St. Martin's, issued a statement Monday saying the performance in the campus theater "went beyond the bounds of valid social commentary and exceeded any reasonable, liberal bonds for freedom of artistic expression."

"We feel that we owe an apology to those we invited to see this performance," Waske said. "They came to be entertained or to be informed on a controversial question."

"Instead, they were insulted and embarrassed by a display of obscenity unnecessary to the message the performers professed to be expressing."

Jerry Gray, administrative assistant to the president of St. Martin's, said the play violated good taste by frequent use of obscene four-letter words.

Gray said the players and the production seemed to be "a deliberate attempt to stamp on every standard or normal concept of morality which most of us hold with regard to women."

He also said the theme was supposed to be a protest against the way society treats Negroes, but that the play struck him as bearing "no resemblance to historical truth."

The play has been recommended for adult entertainment.

The Rev. Michael Feeney, president of St. Martin's, praised the students for their decision to end the performance of what he termed "a sick, sick, sick show."

Every mother wants to raise her family in a safe and friendly atmosphere

When the little hummingbird set up housekeeping in a Standard Oil refinery, she paid us a high compliment.

She didn't know that our Company had invested millions to remove smoke and vapors from the refinery atmosphere, but she found it highly compatible—and she's an expert judge of air. The refinery's human neighbors also benefit.

Clearing smoke and smog from the atmosphere of whole cities will be a more complex problem, but

Standard Oil works for this, too—through research, joint efforts with public authorities, the loan of top scientists to pollution control projects in your community's interest.

Whether it's protecting natural resources, scenic areas and wild life... guarding water resources against pollution... or preventing contamination of the air in our busy cities... Standard Oil is dedicated to conservation—an important part of our responsibility to you.

P.S. The baby hummingbirds, born at our El Segundo, California, refinery, were as pretty as their mother.
