

Frye and Porter...

constant hazards of being a politician," wrote Robert Frazier, associate editor of the Eugene Register-Guard, "is that every time you open your mouth, you risk kicking yourself in the teeth."

Mr. Frye chides Viet Nam critics and defends U.S. policy with an absolute certainty. Those who publicly lament the fact that 83,000 bombing missions were flown in 1965 with a consequent 730,000 refugees, and a doubling of our economic aid, "want to believe that our government does not sincerely want peace in the world."

John Gange, director of the University's Institute of International Studies and a former State Department official, has said: "If you are not confused about the situation in Southeast Asia, you're just not fully informed. Anyone who has strong opinions about easy solutions just doesn't know what's going on."

CHIDES VIET CRITICS

The military solution, according to some on-the-scene reporters, has solidified North Vietnamese and Cambodian opposition. Is there anything unpatriotic or "irresponsible" about groping for other alternatives?

Discussion and careful examination of our problems have been cardinal precepts in our democracy. In his book "Profiles In Courage" John Kennedy said, "Only the courageous will be able to keep alive the spirit of individualism and dissent which gave birth to this nation, nourished it as an infant, and carried it through its severest tests upon the attainment of its maturity."

This is not to say which of the "pro" or "anti" war positions is right. Campaign rhetoric designed to make an opponent unpopular only clouds the relevant issues of inflation, the intricacies of U.S. foreign policy, and fourth district problems.

A PLANNING CARRIER

Mr. Frye has had an ambitious and promising young career. His strategy as "lawyer for the defense" of U.S. foreign policy ignores historical precedent in Oregon. It ignores Oregon's political independence and reverence for fair play. Geddes' attack in 1958 gave Porter the victory. Morse's efforts at keeping ex-Governor Holmes in office met disaster and ushered in Mark Hatfield. Oregon repudiated an ultra-conservative attempt to covet the state for Goldwater, and gave the 1960 Republican nomination to Rockefeller.

Frye seems to be making the unfortunate mistake of many political neophytes. Oregonian columnist Harold Hughes has noted that the burgeoning Frye "has not picked up the kind of political savvy that a hard-fought campaign teaches." His attacks on Porter display a paucity of issues and an abandonment of a judicious examination of the facts—not the platitudes—of our perilous world situation. Indeed, by charging Porter with playing "Red Chinese Checkers," William Frye could be playing "Russian Roulette."

even if they can out-talk Martin Luther King, or out-fox Whitney or out-bargain any other leader, they still have Elijah Mohammed to contend with."

Various civil rights groups are working on different agendas, Talbert added. "One agenda of the white community says 'Let's keep peace in the community.' The agenda for the non-white group could be: 'Now that we have tasted the fruits of freedom, let's get more things.'"

He said that he felt the successful course of the civil rights movement in America could have attributed to the Watts riots.

"Expectations brought on by these successes placed Negroes on a collision course with automation. . . . Just when some doors were opening because of civil rights, they were slammed shut because of automation which obliterated many jobs."

Boston Architect To Visit Campus

Boston architect N. Michael McKinnell will be a guest of the School of Architecture and Allied arts today and Tuesday. McKinnell is a member of Kallman & McKinnell, architecture firm in Boston. He will give a lecture at 1 p.m. Tuesday in 106 Lawrence on the current architectural projects of his firm.

University Will Host Fire, Arson Seminar

Two fires were set in Eugene this week in preparation for a five-day Northwest fire and arson seminar being held today through Friday at the University. "From the Alarm to the Courtroom" is the theme of the seminar, which will include a special field problem and simulated arson trial as well as lectures by experts in the problems of fire and arson.

Brant to Lecture At Library Dinner

Biographer-historian Irving Brant will be the featured speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Friends of the Library set for tonight.

Brant, a visiting professor of history, will speak at 6:30 p.m. He will discuss "The Books of James Madison with some comments on the reading of FDR and JFK."

Arabs to Observe Palestine Day

Arab students at the University are observing "Palestine Day" at the Free Speech Platform at noon today.

They will consider how the present situation has developed since eighteen years ago when incidents took place in Palestine which caused its Arab population to leave for neighboring Arab countries. These incidents were culminated by the establishment of the state of Israel.
