

Merritt Named Library Dean

LeRoy C. Merritt, associate dean of the School of Librarianship at the University of California at Berkeley, has been named dean of the University's new School of Librarianship, President Arthur S. Flemming has announced.

The appointment is subject to confirmation by the Oregon State Board of Higher Education.

The new school has been approved by the State Board and will begin classes next fall. It will succeed a department of librarianship which has been a part of the School of Education.

Merritt is currently president-elect of the Association of American Library Schools.

He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin and a diploma in librarianship from the Wisconsin Library School. He received his doctor of philosophy degree from the Graduate Library School of the University of Chicago in 1942.

After service on the faculties of the University of Colorado, the University of Chicago, and Longwood College, Virginia, he joined the faculty of the University of California at Berkeley in 1946, where he has served as professor of librarianship and since 1964 associate dean of the School of Librarianship.

He has written extensively for professional publications, and is a member of several professional groups. He is a member of the American Library Association and editor of its Newsletter on Intellectual Freedom.

National Fellowships Awarded to Student

Two national fellowships, including a National Defense Education Act grant amounting to $13,850 have been awarded a University student, Sylvia Thelen of Salem.

Miss Thelen will use the three-year NDEA fellowship to work on a doctor of musical arts degree of Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

She also received a fellowship to attend the Yale Summer School of Music and Art at Norfolk, Conn.

Students Asked To Aid Meredith

A call has been issued for "students to participate in James Meredith's 'Mississippi Freedom March' to Jackson, Mississippi" by Michael Murphy, a member of the National Executive Committee of the College Young Democratic Clubs of America.

"Their presence would do much to dispel fear and further the cause of equal rights in Mississippi," he said.

Meredith, who gained national notoriety by becoming the first Negro ever to be admitted to the University of Mississippi, was shot and wounded on June 6 as he marched along a Mississippi highway on his pilgrimage against racial fear in the South.

Murphy, a student at Vanderbilt University, said although there had been progress in the South, "the attempt on Meredith's life made it clear that Southern leadership has failed to meet its responsibility."

"It is gratifying that the march is being continued," Murphy stated, but added that "the lack of participation by local leadership to demonstrate their support for equal rights is disappointing."

"The Meredith shooting was a 'tragedy' for the people of Mississippi, which also speaks to the heart of all men who value human dignity and aspire to a better life," said Murphy.

"If one cannot demonstrate the strength of his principles without fear of bodily harm," he added, "then individual liberty and freedom has been destroyed."

Murphy called for a united effort in Congress and the nation to "renew our effort to insure equal rights and offer every American a life free from fear and full of opportunity."

Challenges Budget

Board Objects To Salaries

The Student Publications Board has challenged a decision made by the Student Union and Educational Activities Budget Board (SU-EdAc) on student salaries.

The Budget Board prepares the budget for student publications, ASUO, the Student Union, and other activities financed from student fees and submits it to University President Arthur S. Flemming for his final approval.

The Publications Board recommended that the salaries for editor and business manager of the Emerald and of the Oregana be set at $1,315.

But the Budget Board changed the salary to $1,355 for the Emerald editor, $1,016 for the Emerald business manager and Oregana editor, and $786 for Oregana business manager. The Budget Board also cut out allotments for staff banquets for the Emerald and Oregana, which had been approved by the Publications Board.

Equal Salaries

On June 2 the Publications Board passed a motion, 7-2, by News Bureau Director Herb Penny recommending that the four salaries be set on an equal level and that the banquets be re-instated. Penny noted that this meant the top salaries would probably have to be cut unless President Flemming could find additional money.

Emerald Editor Phil Semas raised strong objections to the proposed cut in his salary and the equalizing of the four salaries.

He said it "made no sense to cut some salaries to make them all equal." He suggested that, if the Publications Board thought the salaries should be equal, they recommend that President Flemming find enough money to make them all $1,355, which he called an "adequate figure."

But Semas also argued that the four positions were not equal.

Time Commitment

He said President Flemming had said he would prefer to see "equal pay for equal work" in student leader positions. Semas argued that the time commitment of the Emerald editor was far greater than that of the other positions and that the necessity for the Emerald to come out every day made it a bigger job.

Chairman Charley Leistner, head of the department of speech, argued that the positions were equal and that student leaders should not be paid on the basis of how many hours they put in.

He said being editor of the Emerald makes it easier for students to get jobs while being editor of the Oregana does not.

Leistner also objected to the Budget Board determining salaries for student publications. He said this ought to be the job of the Publications Board. "I've tried to maintain that what we're doing in here is important," he said, "but if the Budget Board can do this then we might as well as resign."

No Advertising

In other business the Publications Board approved the proposed ASUO student evaluation booklet but required that the publication contain no advertising. The publication was budgeted to break even with $1,200 income from sales.

The evaluation booklet will be contained in the ASUO budget and administered by the ASUO, not the Publications Board.
