

Carnival Theatre to Open Friday with Musical Comedy

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," first production of the 1966 season of Carnival Theatre at the University, will open at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Carnival Theatre amphitheatre on the south side of the University Theatre.

The best in vaudeville, burlesque, and Roman comedy is said to be contained in this well-known musical comedy. It was written by Burt Shevelove and Larry Gelbart from comedies of the early Roman playwright Plautus, who was supposed to have "borrowed" his plots from the Greeks.

Director Paul R. Waldo, graduate student in theatre, thinks the show is "one of the tightest and brightest musicals going." Music and lyrics are by Stephen Sondheim, composer of "West Side Story."

The season-opener will run through next Friday, with the Thursday performance to be staged at the University Theatre.

Bert Morton, Carnival Theatre's musical director, will be in charge of vocal direction and David Young will conduct the orchestra. Nicola Cutter, Eugene, is choreographer, and Dave Smith, assistant director. Charles E. Blankenship, Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., is costume designer.

The set was designed by Waldo and Faber DeChaine, associate professor of speech.

Pseudolus is the inventive Roman slave about whose zany adventures the plot revolves. Nash took part in 1964 Carnival Theatre production.

Hero, the young master for whom Pseudolus attempts to secure the beautiful virgin Philia in order to win his own freedom will be portrayed by Randall Beal. Chilton Cunningham of Ann Arbor, Mich., has been cast as Philia.

The warrior who has already purchased Philia in the play will be enacted by Charles Wyman.

Edward Chilla is cast as Senex, Hero's father. Norman Delue has been cast as Hysterium. Delue has acted in several Carnival Theatre productions of previous seasons.

Charles E. Blankenship will play Lucius. He has been in several University Theatre plays. Domina, the domineering wife of Senex, will be played by Helen J. Snyder.

James Hamilton has been cast as Erronius.

Other members of the cast include Pamela Condon, playing Tintinabula; Laraine Lee, Panacea; Sue Parks, Vibrata; Penny Rix, Gymnasia; Mary Harwood and Marcia Cooke the Geminae.

Hoover Letters In UO Magazine

Five previously unpublished letters, written by the late President Herbert C. Hoover, appear in the spring issue of Call Number, semi-annual publication of the University Library.

The letters, written to Nell May Hill of Independence, Ore., are part of a collection of the Henry Hill letters at the University Library.

The first three of the letters were written while Hoover was a student at Stanford University, the last two during the summer after he graduated.

In the last of the letters presumed to have been written in 1895, young Hoover writes of the possibility of a position on the faculty of the University, noting that "Although I should very much like to have it, I have no influence with Oregon politicians and hardly see how I could get it otherwise."

'Saucery Sorcery' Comes Tuesday

The Student Union Board is sponsoring a program called "Saucy Sorcery Show" at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the SU Ballroom.

C. Shaw Smith, along with his family, make up the cast of this hour and a half stage show.

Smith, who holds a master's degree in English from the University of North Carolina, has had experience both in military troupes and on circuits of U.S. college and university campuses.

Smith's act includes himself, 17-year-old Shaw Jr., 16-year-old Curtis, 13-year-old Nancy, 11-year-old Graham, and Mary Mig who is 6. His wife, Nancy, provides musical background for the evening of conjuring and comedy.

Although Smith's experience is toward entertainment for adults, "Saucy Sorcery" is meant to appeal to students, faculty, and family groups.

Shaw states about the show, "Frankly, we think the show is cute, corny, and friendly."

Cast as Proteans are Joe Baker, Robert Gage, Floyd Bippes, and Peter Simpson. Debby Halladay and Bonnie Scott will play palace guards.

Tickets, priced from $2 to $3, are on sale for "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" at the Carnival Theatre Box Office, Ext. 1781. Box office hours will be noon to 5 p.m. through June 30, and noon to 9 p.m. daily except Sunday, beginning July 1.

Over 50 outstanding theatre artists have been assembled to form the 1966 Carnival Theatre company. "Excitement '66" is the theme this year of the semi-professional summer stock theatre.

DeChaine will be managing director. Scenic designer will be Anthony L. Kadlec, assistant professor of speech, who will also direct a play.

A professional actor and director who has taken part in a vast number of legitimate theatre, Broadway, and motion picture productions, will be both an actor for this summer's Carnival Theatre. He is William Cottrell, who has worked with such theatrical greats as Charles Laughton and Peter Ustinov.

Also directing will be Don Fibiger and Waldo.

Hollywood stars of "The Way West," motion picture currently being filmed near Eugene, will be on hand Friday for the opening night. Other productions which will be performed are, "After the Fall," "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground," "She Loves Me," "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye" and "The Roar of the Greasepoint — The Smell of the Crowd."

Student Criticizes Counsel System

The appointment of court lawyers for indigents should reflect the Western ideal of equal justice, states Harvard law student Michael Moore in the June issue of the Oregon Law Review, the University's School of Law quarterly.

Moore, who conducted research for the article in several Oregon counties, criticizes today's appointed-counsel system for its lack of uniformity and failure to consistently give the indigent the same opportunities for good counsel as the "rich man."

The Review also contains several articles by the University law students and former students. Contributors in this issue are: David C. Haugeberg, Michael D. Montgomery, graduates, and third-year students, William B. Freck, John Kneeland, and Margaret Ann Willoughby.
