

'Strongest Team We Meet'

Gridders Face Stanford

Don't Let 'Em Psych You Out, Tzar—Win

Len Casanova's Oregon Webfoots, winless in three 1966 games, move into Portland's Multnomah Stadium this weekend to tangle with the big Stanford Indians.

Coach John Ralston's Redskins boast a respectable 2-1 campaign and come into the contest as a one-touchdown favorite.

According to Coach Casanova, "Stanford will be the strongest team we meet. They are big and powerful and have a good offensive attack."

Ralston's team will be commanded by sophomore Gene Washington from Long Beach, Calif., who at 6-2, 182 pounds is a double threat to the Ducks.

He can pass and he can run, as shown by a 9.7 clocking in the 100. He is so capable that Coach Ralston moved his first string caller, Dave Lewis, to halfback in order to make room for Washington.

Adding to the offensive attack of the Indians is senior letterman John Read and sophomore Greg Broughton, who are Stanford's two fullbacks.

Another Redskin, Bill Shoemaker, a 6-foot sophomore, last week booted three field goals in the victory over Tulane, including one for 50 yards. Currently Shoemaker is third in the AAUW in scoring with 21 points—15 via the field goal and six extra points.

Stanford's big front line includes tackle Monte Mohrman (210), center Tom Sheehan (225), and Mike Hibler (240). And the Indians' defense also shouldn't go unnoticed. With players like John Guillory and Al Wilburn on the defense, the Webfoot attack could be slightly delayed.

Speaking of Oregon's attack, it can be said that their potential is high. Casanova said, "The pass defense still needs working on."

He further pointed out that yesterday's workout showed good signs and that sophomore Mike Barnes will again open the game at quarterback. On the other hand injuries are still hampering the Webfoot eleven. Offensive stalwarts Arlan Elms, Claxton Welch and Steve Reina will be doubtful for the Portland affair.

As far as season statistics go, Stanford holds 21-12-1 advantage over Oregon, but in encounters in the northwest, the series is deadlocked 6-6.

Birds Win 1st

Baltimore's two Robinsons, Frank and Brooks, hit back-to-back home runs in the first inning Wednesday and the Orioles went on to win the first game of the 1966 world series, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2 at Los Angeles.

Moe Drabowsky, shunned by four other clubs before the Orioles grabbed him, tied a 47-year-old record as he came on in the third inning and recorded six consecutive strikeouts. Drabowsky chalked up the win and collected 11 strikeouts.

Ruggers to Get Reception Sunday

A reception in honor of the combined Oregon-Oregon State rugby squad that toured Great Britain earlier this summer will be held in the Student Union dining room from 3-5 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

Included in the program will be talks by Murray Dawson of Oregon State, who coached the team, and SU director Jack Cross, who also accompanied the team on the trip.

All the trophies, newscippings, and pictures the team was presented with will be on display. In addition, slides and other pictures of the trip will be shown near the end of the program.

The reception is open to the public, and refreshments will be served.
