

Unusually Talented Students Wanted

Director Faber DeChaine is looking for students with some unusual talents for the University Theatre's November productions of "In White America" and "Spoon River Anthology."

These documentary plays are really theatrical events to be as fully staged and as artistically presented as the theatre's resources permit.

"In White America" ran nearly four years in New York. This "event" is an extremely topical collection of materials from history which details in part the history of the Negro in America.

Of the six actors, two men and one woman must be Negro. DeChaine needs singers as well as a folk guitarist.

"Spoon River Anthology," a collection of Edgar Master's immortal folk poems, songs and scraps of Americana, is in the same category with "A Night's Frost" and "An Evening With Carl Sandberg." It also requires singers, actors, and a folk guitarist.

No restrictions govern those interested in theatre; no prerequisites in drama are required and casting is open to the entire University population.

Interested students with questions about the parts may call DeChaine or see him in his office. Open tryouts will be held in Villard Hall, Room 104, on Monday and Tuesday, October 10 and 11, at 7:30 p.m.

Debate Scheduled

ASUO Vice President Lee Bolinger will debate Mike Donahue on the question of "Student Involvement in University Affairs" today from 3-5 p.m. in the SU Ballroom. Their debate is part of the Student Philosophy Conference. An open discussion will follow.

Student Appeals Grades In Court

BOULDER, Colorado (CPS)—If you don't like your final grade, take it to court. In a precedent-making case a University of Colorado co-ed has done just that.

Miss Jacalyn Dieffenderfer has charged her English Literature instructor, Miss Kaye Bache, with improperly giving her a failing grade for misconduct—cheating on a final examination.

The 20-year-old junior seeks an injunction from Boulder District Court requiring the university to change her grade.

Instructor Bache contends that similarities between Jacalyn's and another student's examinations could not have occurred without cheating.

Miss Dieffenderfer maintains that her work in the literature course deserved a B or better.

A university disciplinary committee which was called to hear the case found the evidence against Miss Dieffenderfer insufficient to determine guilt. When no action was taken as a result of the committee decision, the co-ed decided the state courts were her only alternative.

Trainee Program Grant Awarded

A grant of $34,059 from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, has been awarded to the University for training counselors and teachers in mental retardation.

Trainees will be working toward masters' and doctoral degrees during the 1966-67 year. Each term there will be nine trainees enrolled in the program, four doing full-time residence work at Fairview State Hospital in Salem and five working at Fairview on a part-time basis.

Leo A. Hamerlynck, assistant professor of education at the University, is the program director.

Gaylord Rybolt, an assistant professor of education joining the University this fall, will supervise the program at Fairview.

The training program is one of those to be conducted in connection with the University's Research and Training Center in Mental Retardation, established this year under a $100,000 grant from the Vocational Rehabilitation Administration.

College Changes Aid Requirements

WILLIAMSTOWN, Massachusetts (CPS)—Williams College will no longer base its scholarship awards on student grade averages, but on need.

For scholarships, freshmen must complete the year in "good standing," the Williams financial aid office announced. No minimum grade average is required for freshmen. A sophomore or junior must attain a C average.

Formerly, the higher a student's marks, the larger the award.

Scholarship Offered Scottish Candidate

The St. Andrew's Society of the State of New York is offering a $3,000 scholarship for one year of graduate study in Scotland. A candidate must be a man of Scottish descent with a strong academic record. For further information see Kenneth Ghent, foreign student advisor.
