

Deller Consort To Open Concerts

The world's most noted counter-tenor, Alfred Deller, and the Deller Consort, an ensemble of seven English artists, will be presented in concert at the University Saturday.

The concert, the first of the 1966-67 Little Concert Series, is sponsored by the Student Union Board. The program, which will include English and Italian madrigals, will be at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the School of Music.

Admission will be by season ticket or by individual ticket at the door. Prices for individual tickets are $2.50 for adults and $2.00 for students.

Season tickets are still available and will be sold at the door. Season ticket prices are $15 for adults and $10 for students for the six concerts in the series and two bonus concerts. Tickets for a choice of four concerts, plus two bonus concerts, are $10 for adults and $7 for students.

CONSORT UNIQUE

The Deller Consort is a unique ensemble. It was originally formed in 1948 for the purpose of performing vocal consort music of the Renaissance and Baroque eras. Deller's counter-tenor, the rarest of male voices, has made possible solo and ensemble performance of a wealth of music that has not been heard for more than a century.

Bach and Purcell wrote some of their most beautiful music for the counter-tenor or male alto voice. It has been said of the counter-tenor voice that "it is like no other sound in music, and few other sounds are so intrinsically musical."

MEMBERS NOTED ARTISTS

The members of the Consort, all artists in their own right, include: Sally Le Sage, soprano, noted as an oratorio soloist and interpreter of Bach; Joanne Brown, soprano, noted in England for coloratura and operatic roles; Max Worthley, tenor, of the English Opera Group and other distinguished opera groups; Maurice Bevan, baritone, who has made a special study of 17th and 18th century music and is well-known as a concert singer; Mark Deller, counter-tenor and the son of Alfred Deller; and Desmond Dupre, lutist.

A featured part of the program to be presented at the University will be a group of solos by Deller. He will perform a selection of the 17th century music of Purcell.

Counselor Orientation ...

so typical of Emerald reporting, Miss Borenstein took positive, neutral, or qualified statements and restated them in her terms. In all, her article demonstrated poor journalism in every respect.

Eliciting Comments

I would further like to note that when Miss Borenstein talked to me, she was working at eliciting unfavorable comments from me about the assistant director of dormitories, Dan Williams, and about the Housing Office and housing philosophy in general.

She told me that she felt Mr. Williams was treating the counselors like children and that we resented this. She also felt that the Housing Office was not improving conditions for the students in the dorms. I was asked by her to comment on this. I told her that I felt Mr. Williams was a great asset to the Housing Office staff and that he was truly concerned with and involved in making life in the dorms a more enjoyable experience for the students. I can sincerely say that Mr. Williams is a dedicated person and is the finest person I have ever had for a superior. I know I speak for all the counselors when I say that we in no way resent Mr. Williams.

I also informed Miss Borenstein of several improvements that have been made in the dorms this year. These include: unlimited seconds on all food; colored TV's on the cable in newly redecorated basement TV rooms for our Hamilton Complex; different phone extensions on each floor for the dorms; and weekly exchanges of all linen items.

Counselor orientation does improve each year. Naturally the returning counselors get bored with some of the repeated material. But rules and conditions in the housing system change each year, so we returning counselors must learn of these changes. Also, during orientation the returning counselors add much to group discussions on actual problems that have occurred in dorm living through the past years.

The returning counselor has much to add to these discussions and gains a feeling of constructive contribution by taking part in such group discussions.

These are the feelings I conveyed to Miss Borenstein concerning orientation, and I in no way implied the whole orientation program was boring or worthless.

Negative Approach

I would hope that Miss Borenstein will mature in her future journalism efforts. It is too bad she had to make her article so misleading and so negative. I get very tired of the Emerald's negative approach to about everything they write about. It is fine to legitimately criticize and convey negative feelings.

But this was not the case in the counselor orientation article. As is usual for most Emerald reporting, there was no alternative methods presented; there were no original suggestions for improving orientation or dorm conditions. It would be nice to see some constructive criticism in future Emerald articles, not just the usual dull and unimaginative criticism.

In conclusion I would like to say that it is a pleasure to be a member of the housing staff and to work with the fine people in the Housing Office. I am sorry that because of one person's poor reporting that my true feelings about the housing staff, the dormitory system, and my job as a counselor were not conveyed to the Emerald readers.

For the future, I would like to challenge Miss Borenstein and the Emerald staff to do some reporting on the many positive aspects of this University, its staff, its faculty, and its students.
