

Marxism Spiritual Threat...

have generally spelled a series of major disasters for the Chinese:

• In Moslem Indonesia, the sixth-largest country in the world, the army engineered an anti-Chinese coup with strong support from powerful student groups throughout the country. American advisors here believe it wouldn't have happened but for the U.S. presence in Viet Nam; they are probably right. General Suharto now apparently has hopeful feelers out for renewed American aid.

• In August, North Korea carefully disassociated herself from the Peking line, and began making overtures in Moscow's direction. One reason no doubt was the continued presence of the Eighth U.S. Army south of the 38th parallel.

• Meanwhile, South Korea and Taiwan are being billed as major American aid success stories. From what I saw this summer in both countries, the stories are plausible enough.

• Unconfirmed reports say General Ne Win in a recent White House visit asked President Johnson for American aid to counter Chinese-supported guerillas in the northern forests of Burma. To Burma watchers, the xenophobic socialist general's American tour was surprise enough; U.S. aid would indicate a significant shift in Burma's foreign policy, which until now has been very deferential to Peking.

• In the face of increasing guerilla activity in both countries, Thailand and the Philippines seem more firmly attached than ever to American support.

• Even Malaysia, with British ground troops guarding her borders, called the U.S. her "greatest and strongest ally" during President Johnson's visit October 30. Three days later, Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman announced that "Peking-oriented terrorists of the 'Malayan Liberation Army'" were operating again in the peninsula's central highlands, 100 miles closer to Kuala Lumpur than they have since 1960.

And that about wraps up Southeast Asia, except for Cambodia, Laos, and Viet Nam.

Cambodia, with strong support from France, has been leaning closer and closer to Peking, despite her avowed neutrality. And Laos seems up for grabs, if anybody really wanted it.

It is on South Viet Nam that China and the U.S. are focusing all the influence and pressure they can bring to bear in a massive struggle for ideological, political, diplomatic, economic and military control over this strategic border land.

The fact that China does not have ground troops operating in South Viet Nam, and the fact that private U.S. commercial interests in Indochina are negligible (only about $6 million in permanent investments), do not lessen the intensity of the conflict.

Similarly, in this international game of power politics, it is academic to argue over whether the Viet Cong is supported or dominated by Hanoi, or Hanoi by Peking. A victory by the Viet Cong would be a victory for Ho Chi Minh and a victory for Mao Tse-tung and Lin Biao.

Rembrandt Etchings Being Shown in SU

An exhibition of 50 reproductions of original etchings and drawing by Rembrandt, master Dutch painter of the 17th century, is being shown in the Student Union Art Gallery today through December 10.

The reproductions are of a collection of original works in the Rijkmuseum in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

While Rembrandt is best known as one of the greatest painters of all times, his work in etching and drawing ranks with the finest. It was he who made the greatest contributions to the technique of etching in the 17th century.

Art Museum Shows Photography Exhibit

Original photographs by William Torow, professor of art at Wisconsin State University, are currently being shown in the photography gallery of the University Art Museum.

Torow's photographs have been widely published in newspapers, magazines and brochures. He has had several one-man photography shows, in addition to exhibitions of his watercolor painting and sculpture.

The Torow exhibit will be up through Sunday. Hours at the museum are from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The museum is closed today.

Knowledge of God

We were always meant to know God... to be deeply aware of His infinite nature and power... and to follow where this knowledge leads in working out our salvation. The Bible speaks of it often. It's the most fundamental knowledge there is, and it requires prayerful study and consistent practice. Christian Science church services offer assistance to those who seek this knowledge. You are always welcome, any Sunday or Wednesday.

VISTA Trainees Study Unemployed

VISTA trainees from the University training center will be conducting a survey of unemployment and day care needs in the Eugene-Springfield area during the next two weeks.

The survey is a combined effort of the Lane County Project, the league of Women Voters, the Oregon Employment Service and the University.

The survey will attempt to determine the nature of unemployment in the area and what effect the lumber market is having on the working population. It will also attempt to discover what the unemployed see as barriers to employment in Lane County.

In addition, the survey will explore the need for day care facilities for children of working mothers.
