

Professor Pulls Striptease Act

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Gypsy Rose Lee may be relegated to second place in burlesque history, now that a George Washington University instructor has taken to stripping.

Having warned students in his sociology class that he was about to do something slightly unorthodox, Joseph Tropea put on sunglasses and divested himself of suit, coat, tie, shirt, and trousers.

Standing before the class in his undershirt, bermudas, and garters, Tropea concluded his lecture on the roles individuals play. By departing from the normal garb and behavior on an instructor, Tropea said later, he was trying to illustrate the process of role changing.

Somewhat uncertain of the effect his performance would have on the class, Tropea also expressed a more personal uncertainty. "As I started to take down my pants, I had to think, 'Did I put on my bermudas?'"

After disrobing, Tropea asked class members if he was in a different role now that they had seen him in a different light. The class, which at first had laughed, said he was not in a different role because he still stood behind a podium which was surrounded by chairs, desks, and blackboards.

The experiment was intended to disrupt student expectations, Tropea said, and was something he hoped they would remember.

Peace Art Exhibit To Open in SU

Art works organized around quotations from Albert Einstein and others on the subjects of war and peace are being exhibited at the Student Union Art Gallery through Saturday.

The Peace Art Exhibit includes photographs, sculptures, paintings, ink drawings, and lithographs by University students, professors, and members of the community.

It is the first exhibit of its kind to be shown at the University.

The showing takes its tone from two general quotations by Einstein and Cuban revolutionary Che Guevara about "cosmic religious feelings" and artistic experimentation, respectively.

One of the works in the exhibit is a "Monument to the Wall"—the artificial wall that may exist between two countries or two people. It was made of wood, paints, steel, and lead by Stewart W. Fritts.

Another is an acrylic by Will Kauffman, graduate sculpture student, entitled "Adult Games Confuse Children."

"Auschwitz," an oil painting by Brandyn Feldman, is based on Einstein's belief that "territorial questions and arguments of power, obsolete though they are, still prevail over the essential demands of common welfare and justice."

1. Say, Marcello, is it true you Romance Language majors get more dates?

2. Really?

Certainement! No girl can resist a Latin approach.

Not when you whisper "Aimez-vous la vie bohémienne ma chérie?"

3. Gosh!

Or, "Carissima, la dolce vita ci aspetta!"

Or, "Yo te quiero mucho, trijolita!"

5. I have to depend on plain English to get my dates. Poverino.

6. But when I tell the girls I've lined up a great job at Equitable that offers challenge, with good pay, and a great future, I get more dates than I can handle.

You mean I wasted 3 years conjugating irregular verbs?

Make an appointment through your Placement Officer to see Equitable's employment representative on February 15 or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division, for further information.

Sampson Elected Board President

Roy J. Sampson, professor of transportation at the University School of Business Administration, has been elected president of the Pacific Northwest Advisory Board, an organization of more than 900 representatives of Oregon, Washington, and northern Idaho railroad shippers.

Sampson is the first University professor to head the board in its 42-year history. The Pacific Northwest Advisory Board was founded in 1925 to promote better rail service and car supply for the Pacific Northwest.

Kennedy to Speak On Tuition Bill

State Representative Richard Kennedy (D-Eugene) will discuss his bill to require the Legislature to approve all tuition increases.

Kennedy will speak at 8 p.m. The place of his speech will be posted in the Student Union.

Kennedy's bill would still allow the State Board of Higher Education to decide tuition increases, but the Legislature would have to approve them before they went into effect.
