

At the Legislature:

Dollars Donated To Combat LSD

SALEM (AP)—A joint legislative Ways and Means Health Subcommittee has authorized $77,442 for preaching the hazards of LSD and other hallucinatory drugs.

The request will go later this week to the full committee when it considers adoption of the Mental Health Division budget.

Representative Joe B. Richards (R-Eugene) said the new Oregon drug education program is necessary because "Timothy Leary and others have tried to make these drugs attractive."

Leary, former Harvard professor, has advocated the use of LSD and urged students to "turn on, tune in, and drop out." He spoke at the University earlier this term.

If the budget item is adopted, Oregon will become one of the first states to have a statewide drug education program that will concentrate on the colleges.

Some of the squares have been removed from Oregon ballots. That doesn't refer to candidates.

The Senate passed a bill Monday that eliminates the use of squares in front of the blank lines on ballots and allows voters to write in a name without making a check.

Representative Richard L. Kennedy (D-Eugene) has been trying for four years to repeal Frances E. Willard Day, the fourth Friday in October.

He made another try Monday. Kennedy wants to repeal the law which requires public schools to commemorate Frances E. Willard, a 19th century temperance leader, by talking about the evils of drink.

Kennedy says the schools ignore the law.

When he first introduced the bill four years ago, State Department of Education officials said they didn't know there was such a law.

fee that pays for athletics, the Student Union, and the Health Service.

Representative Rod McKenzie (R-Sixes) raises a different objection. He says he has received letters from constituents with students at Southern Oregon College objecting to raising the fees there to the level equal to that of the University, Oregon State, and Portland State.

Tuition at SOC and the other two regional colleges will be raised to the same level by fall of 1970 under the plan adopted by the Board of Higher Education. At present they pay $12 a term less.

"Higher education is more of a privilege than an absolute right," McKenzie said. "It tends to make people more responsible when they have to pay something. I don't think they should take away all tuition."

Like Potts, McKenzie doesn't think tuition keeps students out of state-supported institutions of higher education. "With scholarships and grants, I think anybody who wants to go to school had enough can," he says.

Representative Kennedy, however, maintains that it does keep people out of college.

He also says there's enough money available for higher education without the increase. He thinks the board jumped just because Governor McCall snapped his fingers and that the Legislature ought to have the final say on tuition.

Most legislators say they're opposed to his idea, however. Speaker Montgomery says it would make the Legislature "a 90-member board of higher education."

Senate President Potts says, "If we start getting into that kind of thing, we'll be doing nothing else but education. I think it should be left to the board."

Kennedy says the Legislature is more sensitive to political pressures and thus might be less likely to raise tuition.

But several legislators oppose the idea for the same reason: the Legislature's political sensitivity. "It should be left to the board. They're more removed from politics," McKenzie says.

"If you get involved in one part of higher education, like tuition, you'll step into others," says Representative Hugh McGilvra (R-Forest Grove).

McGilvra, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, probably summed up the overall legislative view of tuition when he commented:

"You have to reconcile the ideal with the practical."

Examining produce in an open-air marketplace in Lisbon is one way to broaden one's knowledge of the ways of the Portuguese people. These girls found exploring the markets of cities around the world a relaxing change from studies undertaken during a semester at sea on Chapman College's floating campus—now called World Campus Afloat.

Alzada Knickerbocker of Knoxville, Tennessee,—in the plaid dress—returned from the study-travel semester to complete her senior year in English at Radcliffe College.

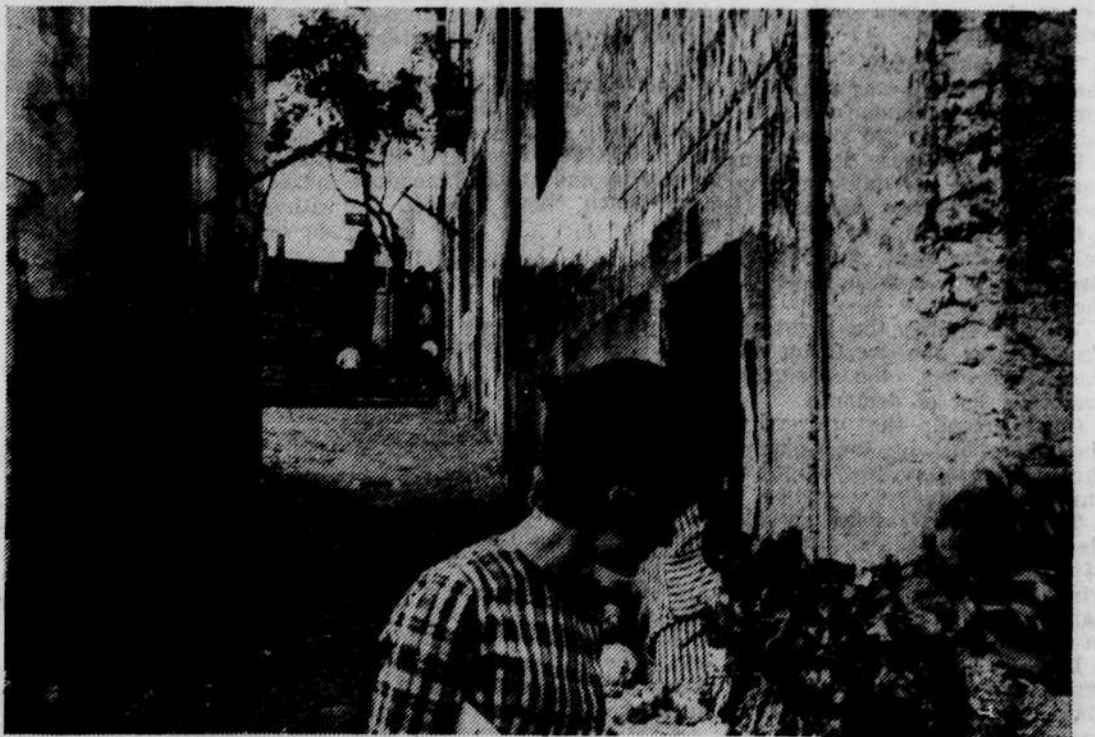

Jan Knippers of Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, and a former Peace Corps Volunteer, first pursued graduate studies in International Relations and returned a second semester as a teaching assistant in Spanish on the world-circling campus.

Students live and attend regular classes aboard the s.s. RYNDAM, owned by the ECL Shipping Co. of Bremen for which the Holland-America Line acts as general passenger agent. In-port activities are arranged to supplement courses taught aboard ship.

As you read this, the spring semester voyage of discovery is carrying 450 undergraduate and graduate students through the Panama Canal to call at ports in Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina, Nigeria, Senegal, Morocco, Spain, Portugal, The Netherlands, Denmark and Great Britain, returning to New York May 25.

Next fall World Campus Afloat—Chapman College will take another 500 students around the world from New York to Los Angeles and in the spring, a new student body will journey from Los Angeles to ports on both west and east coasts of South America, in western and northern Europe and as far east as Leningrad before returning to New York.

For a catalog describing how you can include a semester aboard the RYNDAM in your educational plans, fill in the information below and mail.
