

Draft Counselor Speaks Tonight

Spock Heads Symposium

DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK
headlines tonight's Symposium speakers

Dr. Benjamin Spock is scheduled to speak at 8:45 tonight in McArthur Court. The topic of his speech will be "The Draft and the Social Problems Caused by the Vietnam War."

Dr. Spock is currently under arrest for encouraging non-cooperation with the selective service system. He has rated national attention for his resistance to the draft and the Vietnam war and will be speaking at the University while out of jail on bail.

First studying at Yale Medical School for two years, Dr. Spock transferred to the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University where he received his medical degree.

Dr. Spock has made pediatrics his specialty. He is known for monthly articles which have appeared in "Ladies Home Journal" from 1954 to 1963. The material from these articles has been converted into two books. Since 1963 he has written for "Redbook."

He is also known for his book, "Baby and Child Care," which was published in 1946. The book has sold 16,000,000 copies in 18 years and has been translated into 26 different languages.

The pediatrician is presently Co-Chairman of the National Conference for New Politics (NC-NP). Prior to joining this organization Dr. Spock served as Co-Chairman for the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy from 1962 until October 1967.

Since 1955 Dr. Spock has been a professor of Child Development at Western Reserve University in Cleveland. Prior to that he held internship and pediatric and psychiatric residencies in different New York hospitals.

With the exception of two years military service, Dr. Spock practiced pediatrics in New York from 1933 to 1947.

Conduct Committee Drops Library Jurisdiction Case

The Student Conduct Committee dismissed an appeal involving library fines in their meeting Tuesday after two weeks of consideration.

The committee also discussed the absence of Associate Dean of Students Philip Beal from recent committee meetings. Beal was allegedly assaulted by a student earlier this month and no formal action has been taken yet.

Discussion about library fines centered on the question whether the Student Conduct Committee had the authority to establish fines and the authority to enforce rules regarding fines or not.

It was brought out in a letter to the committee from Mike Eastland, student prosecutor, that the State Board of Higher Education established a 25 cent fine for overdue books. This fine is the same throughout the entire state system.

Terry Hammons, student defender, stated the State Board makes no other rules or regulations and thus leaves the rule-making and enforcement up to the University. Therefore, Hammons implied, since the faculty delegated the authority to the Conduct Committee to enforce campus regulations, it should have authority in this situation.

Herbert Titus, associate professor of law and a committee member, contended since the State Board has control over all fines collected, then only the State Board has the authority to make regulations regarding fines.

The head librarian consequently has the authority to make library regulations such as when a book should be overdue because he belongs to the Library Council, a body under the State Board.

When it came down to a vote, the committee decided the issue was not within its bounds and dismissed the appeal 4 to 1, with Bruce Brothers, law student, the only dissenting member.

The committee did not take any action on the alleged assault by a student on Associate Dean of Students, Philip Beal. Last week the committee requested an acting associate dean of students be appointed by University President Arthur S. Flemming to handle this case alone, but no action has been taken by Flemming.

The committee did discuss Beal's absence from the committee meetings. He has not attended a meeting since the alleged assault. Beal is secretary of the conduct committee and assists the committee in the discharge of its responsibilities.

Members of the committee asked that President Flemming be notified by letter of Beal's absence but no action was taken on this.

According to Bruce Brothers, the action was requested because some of the members felt his absence made it difficult for the committee to discharge its duties.

Beal later stated to the Emerald that his primary reason for not attending was because the issue of the acting dean of students has not been settled.

"Because of this, I feel it would be inappropriate that I be there," he said. He also commented, "This is not to say there are not other problems but I haven't had the opportunity to discuss them with the president."

Today, the committee will discuss the campus traffic and parking regulations.

Lindsay Speaks Here Thursday

New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay may have plenty to talk about Thursday afternoon in the EMU Ballroom.

The 46-year-old chief of the world's third-largest city comes to the University direct from a verbal squabble with Gov. Nelson Rockefeller over handling of the Uniformed Sanitationmen's Association strike in New York.

Lindsay's refusal to endorse Rockefeller's quick compromise settlement with garbage men last week won editorial applause from most newspapers around the Empire State, including the New York Times.

The Times denounced the governor's move to end the stoppage a "appeasement" for the union whose members violated the state's Taylor Law in striking for a pay boost.

Lindsay has been mentioned by Republican party leaders as a possible vice-presidential candidate in this year's election. His reorganization of the New York police force and his methods in dealing with urban problems have eased Harlem and minority tensions for two summers straight.

Lindsay, a former two-term

Congressman, was one of the first opponents to U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

His speech is set for tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the EMU Ballroom.

'Real' Warhol Debuts Tonight

"There is no further reason to expect anyone else but Mr. Warhol himself to appear at the program," according to an ASUO press release.

Andy Warhol's real appearance at the University is scheduled for 9 tonight in the EMU Ballroom.

There is a special catch to admissions to the program being admission slips. Only students with admittance slips obtainable at the EMU Main Desk will be admitted before 9 p.m. After 9, students without them will be admitted if there is room to accommodate them. The slips became available Tuesday.

The presentation will include a lecture plus films and appearing with Warhol will be Warhol's agent Paul Morrissey and a lady star.
