

Faculty Senate, ASUO Senate, Discuss Meet

Three members of the ASUO Senate and three members of the Faculty Senate will meet today to establish time, date and place for a joint meeting of the two full bodies.

The idea of having a joint meeting between the ASUO Senate and the Faculty Senate was suggested in a Faculty Senate resolution passed spring term and sponsored by James Tattersal, associate professor of economics.

Today ASUO Vice President Dan Allison, Senators Bob Winger and Randy Farleigh, Orlando Hollis, professor of law and chairman of the Faculty Senate, Ivan Nivens, professor of English and vice-chairman of the Faculty Senate and Wendell Basye, professor of law and secretary for the Faculty Senate will meet to discuss the proposed meeting.

Basye said the delegations from both groups were meeting to plan the people, place and way of handling the meeting of the full bodies. He also said an agenda would be planned.

Allison said he would like to see the meeting time set next week, preferably Wednesday evening.

The goal of the ASUO Senate delegation is to establish the best possible communications on student desires and what they want for the University.

Allison said where the students fit in the decision making process would be discussed. "They should fit in everywhere," he said.

Secondly, Allison said, he hoped to establish the meetings on a permanent basis, "not just have one meeting."

Other points, mostly technical, according to Allison, will also be discussed.

The meeting will be at 4:45 in 217 Friendly. The press, but not the public, will be allowed in.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID HARRIS (JOAN BAEZ)
Resistance Symposium Begins Today

Harris, Panels Begin Resistance Symposium

A speech by David Harris, former Stanford University student body president, draft resister and advocate of non-violence, tonight in the EMU ballroom, will mark the beginning of a three-day symposium on draft resistance.

In his speech, Harris will discuss the draft resistance movement and its implications for American society.

A series of panel discussions will continue the symposium Thursday afternoon from 1 to 4 p.m. in the ballroom, covering the topics "Why Resist?"; "Building a New Community," "Non-violent Revolution," and "The Activity of the Eugene Resistance Community."

Thursday night at 8 p.m. three films will be shown, "Sons and Daughters," "The Boston Draft Resistance" and "Vietnam Dialogue."

Friday night Harris's wife, folk singer Joan Baez, will appear in Mac Court in a concert for the benefit of the resistance beginning at 8 p.m.

Harris has worked in Mississippi with the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee and in California with the National Farm Workers who have led strikes against large farm owners for better pay and working conditions.

Harris has said he believes non-violent activism is the only response to violent reflexes in our culture and that "taking control of one's own life" is the central problem for young Americans.

Harris feels that the draft and the Vietnam war are merely focal points in this effort.

He has said, "Student deferrals are immoral. They need

Humphrey Lacks McCarthy 'Yes'

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Eugene McCarthy, in his first major political speech since losing the Democratic presidential nomination to Hubert Humphrey in August, declined again Tuesday night to support the Vice President's campaign.

"The call goes out for party unity, just as it did a year ago," McCarthy said. "It was not acceptable then, and it's not any more acceptable today."

The Minnesota senator spoke at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner for New York Democratic senatorial nominee Paul O'Dwyer, a peace candidate who also has consistently refused to support Humphrey.

McCarthy said his efforts to change the direction of the Democratic Party were not aimed at getting anybody elected.

But he said he saw "no reason why the direction of the party could not be changed with a presidential candidate this year."

He listed three conditions he thought should be met to change the direction: Shifts in Vietnam war policy, a restructuring of the draft system and restructuring of the party machinery.

McCarthy received a three-minute standing ovation from the 1,400 persons who packed the grand ballroom of the New York Hilton Hotel.

Many stood on chairs and chanted, "We want Gene, we want Gene."

McCarthy reviewed his efforts over the past year and said that he began his presidential campaign more "to raise issues than to have or divide the Democratic Party."

He added, "We did not raise these issues to gain control. We did not raise the issues to win office."

In recent days speculation has centered around the possibility McCarthy might endorse the Vice-President since he declared he would consider a cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam as an "acceptable risk" in the search for peace.

Until now, McCarthy has not made a statement on the campaign since the end of the convention. He spent some time on vacation and has been covering the World Series of Baseball for Life magazine.

McCarthy refused to endorse Humphrey after the latter was nominated even though Senator George McGovern, also a candidate for the Democratic nomination, appeared with Humphrey the night of his acceptance speech.

A number of former McCarthy supporters, including Oregon Sen. Wayne Morse, have endorsed Humphrey's candidacy.

University Director Says . . .

'Married Students Need Increased Dorm Housing'

By MAN WAI LAU

The need for married student housing is greater than that of single students, according to H. Philip Barnhart, director of University housing, during an interview.

The reason, said Barnhart, is that the number of freshmen, who are required to live in University dormitories, is decreasing while the number of graduate students is increasing. "About 60 per cent of the graduate students are married," said Barnhart.

In 1961, there were 2,738 freshmen enrolled at the University. Last year, there were only 2,706. This year, the estimated figure is even lower.

The number of graduate students, on the other hand, jumped from 1,350 in 1961 to 3,660 last year. This year, the expected enrollment is round about four thousand.

The above figures, however, do not suggest there are fewer high school graduates in Oregon. In 1961, approximately 23 thousand students graduated from Oregon high schools. This year, the number is estimated as 31 thousand.

In explaining the drop of freshmen enrollment, Barnhart said one reason is the number of community colleges has gone up in the past few years. "These community colleges absorb many high school graduates," Barnhart said.

The second reason, Barnhart further explained, is the University has become more sophisticated and concentrates more in the upper division and the graduate school. At present, about a fourth of the student body are doing graduate work.

Last year, Barnhart prepared some charts showing the class percentage of total enrollment. In 1961 the freshman class was 30.9 per cent to the total enrollment while percentage for graduate students was 15.2.

Last year, the percentage for freshmen class fell down to 19.5 while the percentage of graduate students jumped up to 26.3.

"We plan the capacity and need of dormitories, according to the figures we have," said Barnhart.

He went on to explain why the need for married student housing is more important. "Three or four single students can afford to rent an off-campus apartment because there are three or four 'incomes' while a married student usually has only one and a half incomes to pay for the same apartment.

At present, the rent for our married student housing units is cheaper than that of community houses because we do not have to pay tax," said Barnhart.

When asked when the University will build another dormitory, Barnhart replied he is not sure. "An additional dorm of 370 beds has been consid-
