

Weekend Preview

'Romeo & Juliet' on stage

By CHRIS HOUGLUM
Of the Emerald

Word has it that Eugene's recent accumulation of snow is melting off, renewing prospects for weekend entertainment as usual. But entertainment editors are a suspicious and skeptical lot and none too prone to run out the flag of Unbridled Optimism. Last night's observation of the dreaded Houghlum's Phenomenon, in which the planet Jupiter, in the ascendant, was seen to be in conjunction with a cloud bank, casts a pall upon our present situation. This occurrence is by no means a mitigating circumstance. It is a bad omen.

Still, weekend entertainment appears to be somewhat inconsistent in respect to this dire forecast. University Theatre's production of "Romeo and Juliet," for instance, is the newest, and easily the most significant, item on the agenda.

The presentation, which begins at 8 p.m. tonight on the UT main stage, represents a carefully edited and historically stylistic version of Shakespeare's tragedy.

Director Faber DeChaine has mounted the drama against one of the most lavish backdrops undertaken by the UT in recent years. DeChaine has expressed the desire to keep the production as faithful as possible to the world of the 15th century Verona, Italy.

A comparatively large cast of 25 is headed by Ben Masters and Elizabeth Latham in the title roles. Supplementary action is carried by Lou Salerni as Mercutio, Ed Chilla as Friar Laurence, Joel Morello as Paris, John Glassburner as Benvolio, Al Strobel as Tybalt, and Patricia Gibson as the Nurse.

Performance dates are tonight and Saturday, and Feb. 5, 6, 7, 8. Curtain time is 8 p.m. for all nights, and additional matinee performances (four were being planned last week) may be scheduled.

Tickets go for $1.50 for Wednesdays and Thursdays, and $2 for Fridays and Saturdays. They can be reserved through the UT box office (except Sundays) from noon to 5 p.m., and from noon to 9 p.m. on performance dates.

A creditable Very Little Theatre production of "The Star-Spangled Girl," Neil Simon's hit comedy about two publishers of an underworld protest magazine and their involvement with a patriotic girl-next-door, has been deferred because of inclement weather. It will play Tuesday through Saturday of next week. See details in Monday's paper.

Only addition to downtown films is Steve McQueen's "Bullitt," which looked good in recent previews. Expect a review next week.

Grad students elect top officers

Bob Rondstadt and Grant Watkinson were elected chairman and vice-chairman of the Graduate Student Council at its meeting last Thursday.

Rondstadt is a master of arts candidate in International studies and economics. Watkinson, a doctoral candidate in finance and business environment, graduated from OSU in 1964.

Rondstadt said he will support the work of the financial aids committee and the possibility of a union of graduate student employees at the University, separation of the GSC from the ASUO and integration of graduate students on the curriculum committee.

The GSC will poll the graduate student employees and hold a special meeting in two weeks to discuss the possibility of a union. A member of the state employees organization will be invited to the meeting.

Coeds can sign up for informal rush

Interested upperclass women may sign up for informal rush through today in the Office of Student Services, 207 Emerald Hall.

The informal rush begins Tuesday and extends through Monday, Feb. 17. A rushee orientation meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. this Monday in the EMU.

Girls who rush during the two weeks are not obligated to pledge, nor to pay a fee. A fee of $8 will be charged only if the rushee decides to pledge.

Qualifications for rush include that the student be an upperclassman with a minimum of 34 hours and a 2.2 cumulative GPA.

For further information coeds may call Kathy Marquis at ext. 1381.
