THE DRAFT Information Center is sponsoring Mike Whittles, foremost lay military counselor in the country, to lead sessions for others interested in military counseling between 2 and 5 p.m. today in the EMU.

Future

INTERNATIONAL students may sign-up for a one-day tour on Tuesday, March 25, which will include the Chemewa Indian School, the Legislature in Salem, and being received by the Governor's office.

At least 25 students must sign up or the tour will be cancelled. There is no cost to the students.

THE ANNUAL Water Ballet Show put on by the Amphibians will be seen at 8 p.m. April 3, 4 and 5 in Leighton Pool. Tickets for the performances can be purchased during registration week. Children 12 and under will be admitted free, and students and adults may purchase tickets for $1.

HOWARD EHRLICH, associate professor of sociology at the University of Iowa, will speak at 3:30 p.m. Friday in 370 Comm. The talk will be sponsored by the School of Community Services and Public Affairs.

THE RESISTANCE Medicine Show will be in Eugene during the first week in April. The "show" includes people from the Committee (a Los Angeles satire group), Bill Garaway, (founder of LA Resistance) people from the living theater, Kevin Barry, Malcom Dundas, fresh from Lumpoc Prison, free macro-biotic food, poet Jeffery Shurtleff, Joan Baez Harris and David Harris.

This will be one of Harris and Garaway's last speaking engagements as they are about to be taken to prison. Interested persons should attend the Resistance potluck at 5:30 p.m. Thursday at 1200 Ferry St., or call 343-0910.

THE WILDLIFE films, "Way of Life" and "Visiting the National Bison Range" will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 19 in 123 Sci. "Way of Life" portrays the national relationship between prey and predator and shows the important role of predator in balance of life. "Visiting the National Bison Range" is about the American bison and efforts of the Bureau of Wildlife to maintain the almost extinct species.

ARTHUR PEARL, professor of education, and Siegfried Engelmann of the Institute for Research on Exceptional Children at the University of Illinois, will discuss their opinions on "Early Childhood Education," in a public confrontation Friday at the Lane County Fairgrounds Auditorium, 796 W. 13th Ave.

Engelmann will present his views at 1:15 p.m. and Pearl will speak at 2 p.m. The two men will participate in a joint discussion at 3 p.m., followed by questions from the audience.

Mostly general

A PROGRAM to help slow readers will be offered spring term. The program will be conducted on an individualized basis of instruction and will be flexibly scheduled. Those who enroll will receive three hours of lab work each week for eight weeks. In the 50-minute lab sessions, students will perform practice exercises designed to increase rate and comprehension with lab instructors on duty to provide help.

Registration will be April 1-4 at the Reading Lab, located at 841 E. 18th St. near the music building. Registration fees for University students is $7.50.

MODEL UNITED Nations needs more participants for spring term. For information contact the Model United Nations office, 307 EMU.

"GOVERNMENT AND the Arts" is the March exhibit in the circulation lobby of the University library. The exhibit seeks to show that both national governments and international governmental organizations are interested in the arts.

Dunn, who was elected at last Saturday's meeting of the board, replaces Kenneth Abraham of Hood River, who resigned.
